Mr. Jamie Tillman

Throughout his long, distinguished career at M.B.A., Mr. Jamie Tillman has been a favorite teacher and administrator. No one works harder than Mr. Tillman to see that every student succeeds. As Director of the High School, he leads by example, pure and simple. Be it cleaning tables in the lunchroom, developing summer leadership programs, inventing the school carnival, starting the health fair, or attending almost every school event, no job is too great or small for Mr. Tillman. His remarkable memory for every boy's name demonstrates his sincere attachment to the students, instilling trust and confidence in all. Mr. Tillman's delaying of important meetings to help a struggling Algebra II student shows the importance he places on teaching. Moreover, Mr. Tillman's sense of humor can lighten even the gloomiest Monday. During the longest weeks, Mr. Tillman is always there with a joke or a word of encouragement. Indeed, no day would be complete without posing for one of his pictures that will end up on the world-famous Mr. Tillman's Photos website. His care and compassion set Mr. Tillman apart as one of the most beloved teachers at M.B.A., the epitome of our motto, Gentleman, Scholar, Athlete.

First off I would like to thank my dad. You have worked so hard and sacrificed so much so that I could attend a place like MBA. Knowing just a few of the things that you have endured, I cannot put in words how much I appreciate your labors and respect your achievements. Mom, you have always been there for me. Your unwavering attention and support, albeit obnoxious and paranoid at times, have helped mold many of the ideals that I uphold. Despite all the joking criticism I make about you, you always have the right things to say. For all these things and much more I love you two. Ashton, you are the best and worst older sister a guy could hope for. It is sometimes hard to be that person, but for all that it's worth, it has made me stronger and made us closer. MK, you're growing up so fast, and there is so much stuff I want you to know about the next years of your life. You know I will always be there to help you and that I taught you everything you know. Be nice. I always loved you the same. Julia, you'll always be little zero. Seriously though, you are frighteningly growing up too. You're lucky you look like me because we got all the good genes. As good as you are at getting into trouble, you're better at getting out. Don't ever stop hugging me either. To my classmates, thanks to everyone's being different and cool in their own ways. MBA would have been a different school without y'all. Good luck in everything you come across. To Alex, Rocco, Power, Tommy, Behar, and all y'all (even Ed Hodge and Max Ireland= TSS) thanks for keepin' it real. We definitely had our share of fun despite all the complaining. Hunter, and others-- wish we could have hung out more after frosh year but I only have the utmost to say about you. Mazzoni--it's been 15 years now and I can't forget a minute of it, all the random stuff we've done. I know we will always be friends. Rocco-- Thanks for being you, you're my boy no matter how many differences we have. To all my teachers, I respect you all so much. You're what make this place what it is, and the relationships I have developed will undoubtedly enrich my life. Coach Lanier-- thanks for providing me with a motivation, even if you didn't know it. Coach K-- thanks for being the nicest person ever. Mr. Giffen-- thanks for being the most involved and open-armed advisor the past four years. Coach E-- thanks for the good times. Dr. Clements-- thanks for teaching me how to work. Mr. Womack-- I can't thank you enough. You opened my eyes to an entire new world. I feel more complete because of your instruction and guidance. Since I met you, you have been there for me. Even Mr. Gioia-- thanks for caring and being fair despite how under-appreciated you are. Coach Matthews-- thanks for being fun and listening to what I had to say. Gary Germaine-- the ways you have changed my life are immeasurable. You taught me to compete, inculcated my drive and mental strength. Best of luck, hope to stay in touch. TNFC 88-- We are the best of all time no matter what. Thanks for being cool and understanding. We'll chill. Olivia, you've changed me in so many ways and taught me things that cannot be measured. It has definitely been a rollercoaster but a whole lot of fun. I cannot thank you enough, especially for making me tow the line as close as I could while still being me. Sorry if I ever hurt you. You're going to make someone very lucky. Shout out and thanks to everyone else I am forgetting. I must quote Crumbo who put it best-- "For all y'all still at MBA, realize that you are bigger than these red brick walls, they don't seem so mighty when you're walking away."

"As long as you keep hope alive there is life."

My time on the hill has been full of ups and downs. I hope I have left a positive impact on this place because I know that MBA has impacted me. I urge everyone still here not only to take advantage of the opportunities the Big Red has to offer, but also to go out of your comfort zone. I encourage you to be inclusive, to make new friends, to play new sports, and to build new relationships. In my career at MBA, I learned that one's friends are what keep you going in this sometimes brutal environment. Always be true and forgive your friends regardless of what others think, because life is too short to be angry.

Thanks for the memories, MBA. It was like a friendship gone sour: we started out nice but by the end we just wanted to go our separate ways. However, I will always remember my friends because they are the ones that helped me get through everything. They all say I’m “make it or break it” ... so in 10 years if this isn’t pawned I’ll know that I’ve done well. Special thanks to Coach K, Coach Lanier, Commander Carr, Dr. Springer, Mr. Giffen, and Mr. Womack. Also mad props to my boys Jack, Max, Pete, Will, Elliott, D Syv, Guy, Crum, and my twin Eric Bader.

To Josh, Kirk, Adam, and Trey: Thanks for arming me with the tools I need to be a Christian man. I am eternally grateful to each of you for your prayers, support and friendship which have inspired me to walk the narrow path with you.

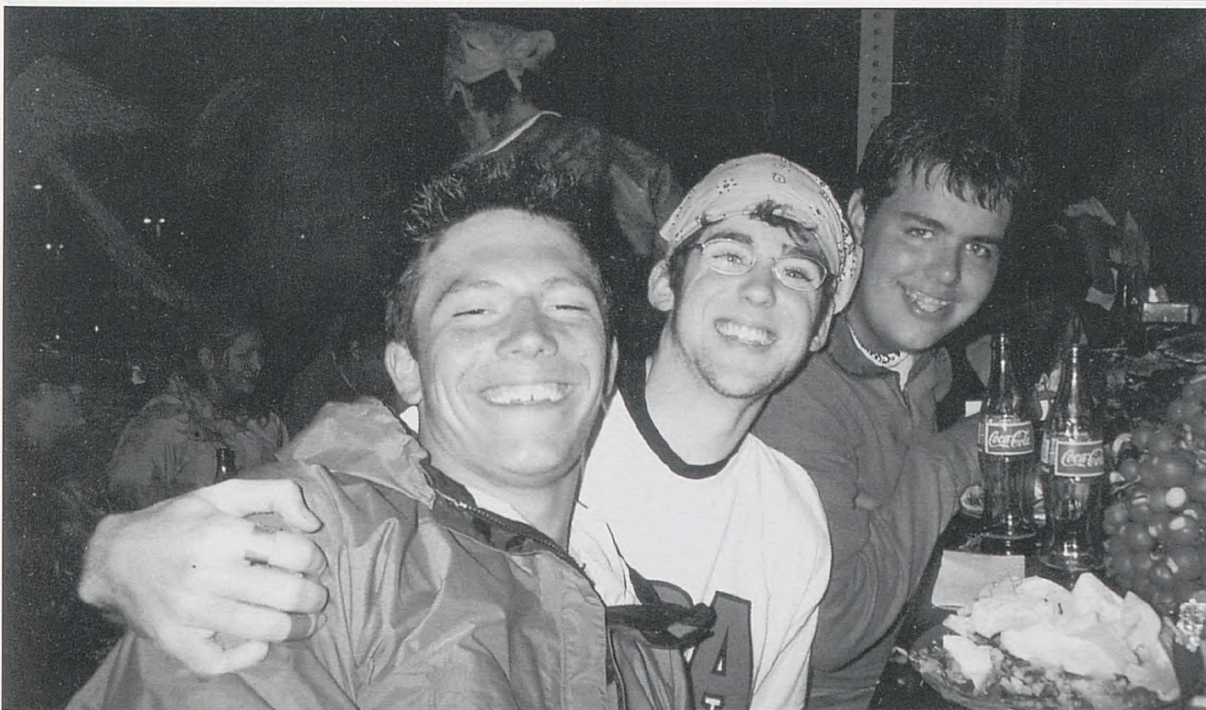

McLean, Lips, Barnes, Douse: Thank you for the conversations that matter. The Lord has blessed me with your friendship, and you have helped mold me into who I am today. Thank you for teaching me to be patient, loving, unrelenting in my passion for His Name, and faithful to all.

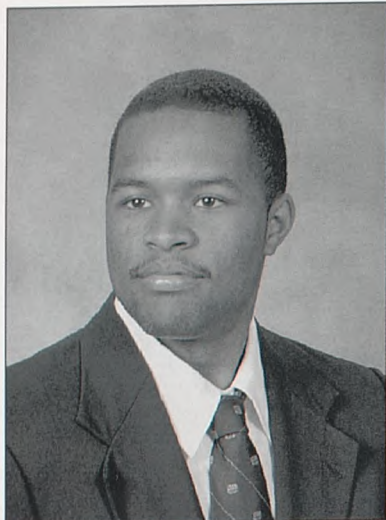

Parker and Scott: What can I say boys? We've done it all together. I can't thank you guys enough for asking me the tough questions, holding me accountable, and being my wingmen. Through Oak Hill, football, FCA, chillin at the Prevost farm, and the strength of our brotherhood through the Gospel, I know that God has blessed me with friendships that will last through the grey hair.

Mom, Dad, Katie, Peter: Thank you for the constant support. Katie and Peter, I couldn't have made it through without you reminding me that you've been there too. Mom and Dad, I couldn't have done it without you telling me that you believe in me. My gratitude cannot be expressed in words.

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "Plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you a hope and a future."

That's something to be proud of.

Buck Curley

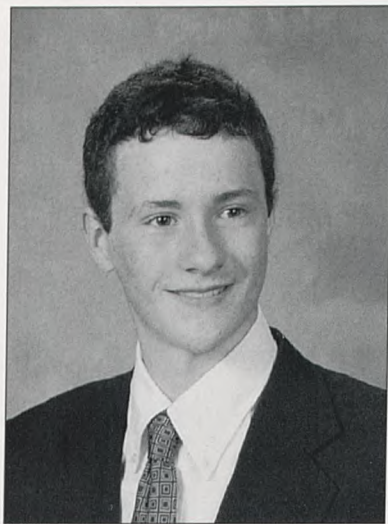

As I sit down to write this bio and look at all the stupid nights and funny quotations, I realize that I'll miss this place more than I've ever imagined. As much as I've looked forward to leaving MBA after this year, I have come to see how much everyone I have spent the last 4 years with have affected my life in a way that words cannot relate. The things I have taken away from my four years of high school are not knowledge or wisdom, but friendship and memories. I know that a list of quotes and inside jokes will do no justice, so I want to remember the people and their impact as opposed to our stupid, yet fun, decisions. Thank you to all my friends throughout high school: Jordan; Crum; Behar; Davey; Nick; Read; Elliott; Bader; Rocco; Mazzoni; Jeffrey; Hunter; Kevin; SAS; Ash; Brooks; Caroline; Buttrey; Kristen; Maria; Bracey and everyone that was even just an acquaintance or stranger.

I want to give a shout out to all the people I was closest to. So thank you...Jordan, for the time we spent at your house (even if there was ketchup and nudity involved). Matthew, for the extreme closeness of our friendship (and all the late nights at your house leading to my getting hurt). Crum, for being a rock-solid friend since kindergarden. Nick, for all the crazy times we had together. Elliott, for being my Young-Life buddy. Read for being the butt of a few jokes but an awesome friend. Kevin, for music influence and spring break sophomore year. Bader, for being there since SHS. Sarah Anne, for being the first, and really one of the few, real friends I had from Harpeth Hall. Davey, for being the voice of reason and integrity. And Ash, for being my first friend at MBA. The times we spent together are almost over, and as much as I look forward, I can't help but look back, too. There was the Ultimate Frisbee Team, Team Wheezy, David and all of his nicknames, parties, Jordan and I as DD kings, cigars and girls, Davey and I fighting, and everything else. I will miss and cherish every minute of it...

Thank you to the Dockery family; you were everything I could ask for in a second family. Thank you for letting me spend most of the last four years living in your house (even when it was packed and multi-cultural). My best memories are housed in those walls. Thank you Mr. Whitfield for being a great teacher, mentor, counselor, and especially a friend. You have done so much to make me who I am today. Thank you to all the good teachers I have had here, Coach E, Dr. Sowell, Mr. Moxley, Dr. Crowell, and all the rest. Thanks, Momma, for being accepting and pushing me. Thanks, Dad, for being so cool when I did stupid things, thanks for trusting me. Thank you, Peyton, for being a great sister, and no matter where you are in the next few years, I am always here for you. You are capable of so much more than anyone else in the family; you aren't as stupid as the rest of us.

This goes out to MBA, my firends, my teachers, and especially my family. Thank you all so much for everything you have done for me. My family means more to me than anything in the world. Mom, Dad, Meagan, and Brandon...I could not have gotten through these past few years without you.

Ketchup, late nights at my house, Jack Bauer, rat tat tat ta with Brooks, Catullus and Vergil with Brooks, FCA, Buck's hairy chest, Matthew's guitar, hairy thorpedo, the scavenger hunt, dude-why do you have a ketchup bottle, so there's this horse..., look at the pain in the face.

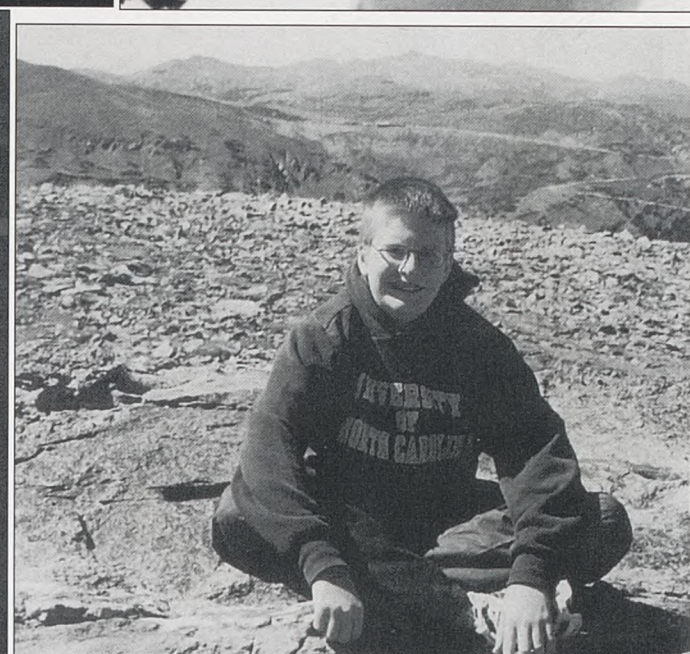

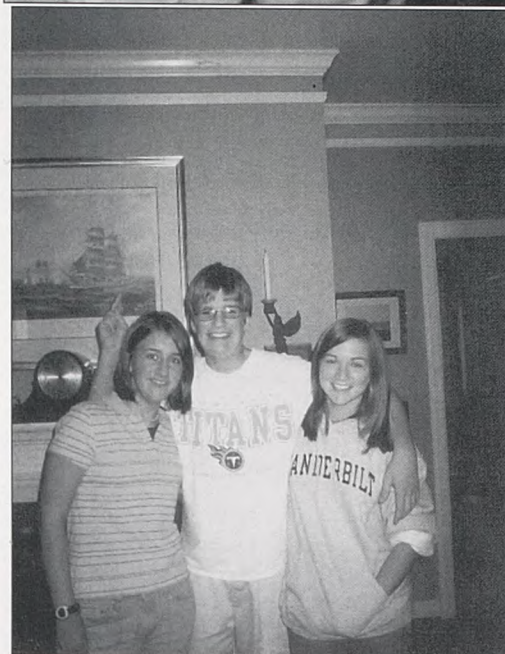

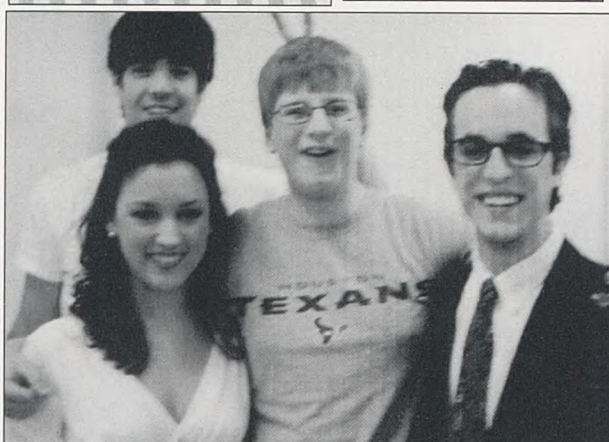

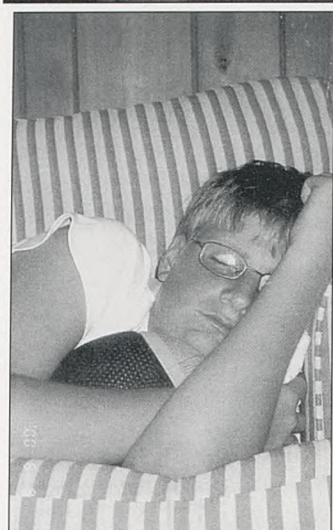

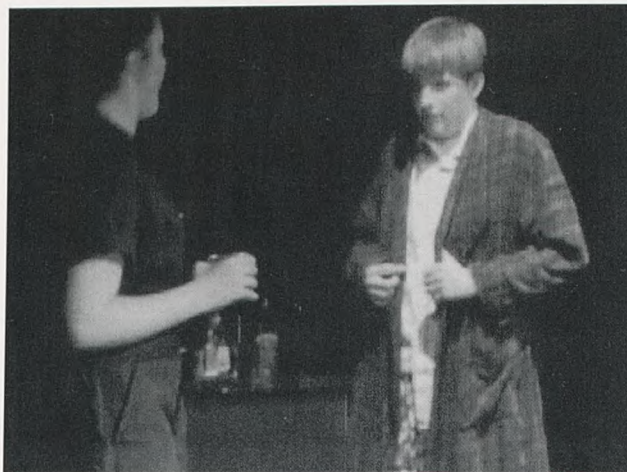

There are so many inside jokes, but those are the ones I may have a chance of remembering in a few years. Here's to friendship; it's the glue that held my high school career together. I will never forget my friends at MBA; these are relationships that I will cherish forever. Go Big Red.

Well, the TRIUMPH OVER THE INFIDELS OF 2030 is a long and arduous story which includes heroes, battles, and pb and j sandwiches. The main character, NICHOLAS, was eating his favorite meal, pb and j sandwich, cheetos, yohoo, yohoo and a bottle of rum, and syrup, when some of his followers began to revolt against his reign. The great and powerful NICHOLAS threw down the lowly infidels with a swoop of his third hand (yeah, that's right, he got a third hand, so what are you gonna do about it?). Then he preceded to take the widows of his diseased enemies and use them as zombie warriors, which pleased him greatly. And now.. I grace you with the digits of pi: 3.141592654654634565 34354652576753 and so on and so forth...

P.S. vote Nic for Pope in 2035

I sat down with the intent of recalling all of the memories that have defined my six years on the hill. I came up with a few near death experiences ("Dude, you almost fell through my house!"), a few nights of happiness, and a couple sad ones, but mostly everything is blurred by the fog of time and...recreation. I am left only with the lessons that I have learned, the friends that I have made, and occasional recollections of the stupid things that we did. I could string together a long list of veiled references to those nights that I barely remember, but I would rather not allow these four years of my life to be defined by the few memories that I could recall during the fifteen minutes that I took to write this. I feel that it is most important that I remember the people with whom I made those memories, rather than the memories themselves when I look back at this years from now. Everyone here has played an important role in making me who I am today. Some are more aware than others of their influence, but I thank all of them for philosophy, love, heartbreak, jokes, advice, disappointment, mistakes, lust, music, happiness, delinquency, late nights, rejection, memory loss, and most of all friendship.

You are capable of things that neither Lauren nor I can imagine. Mom, you are one of a kind. I love you. Dad, thank you for the outdoors and so many other things. I would like to thank God for giving me such a wonderful life and for all the amazing experiences that have shaped my life. To my family, I want to say thank you for always supporting me in every way. Without all of you, I would have never been able to make it so far in my life. Jim: thank you for always being the father that I needed, especially during the hard times in my life. Thank you for always pushing me to be a better person, a better student, and a better Christian. You have been a true role model in my life and I love you. Mom: Thank you for understanding me in all situations. Thank you for allowing me to learn from my mistakes and always giving me advice about life. You have truly shown me what it means to be a strong person. Ian: Keep on fighting the good fight. Living with Mom and Dad is difficult but you can do it. Thanks for being the perfect little brother and giving me the support I needed to succeed. Nana: You have been the greatest grandmother I could have ever asked for. You have shown me the purest form of love and been a role model to look up to. You have shown me what it means to be a Christian and servant of Christ. Pops: You have had such a strong presence in my life and your strength throughout your hardships has offered me hope as I have gone through mine, thank you. Ashley: You have been such a great friend. Thank you for sharing all the good times with me. You have been instrumental in my development as a Christian and I want to thank you for everything that you have done for me. Billy: You are one of the funniest guys I know. Thank you for sharing all the good times with me. Alex: You are one of the most wonderful people in my life and you have changed my life forever. Thank you for everything that you have done for me. Auntie Sarah: You have been the person to always bring me back to earth and make me see the big picture of life, thank you. With out all the members of the Class of 2006, my experiences and life at MBA would have been nothing. Thank you to all of my teachers; I have learned more than I ever thought possible about academics and life. To all of my coaches, thank you for pushing me and enabling me to be the best that I could be. Coach Brown: You are the greatest coach I have ever had. You have shown me what it means to have a strong work ethic, thank you. To everyone in my life, thank you. The times that I have spent on the Hill have been the best of my life. ROLL RED ROLL!

Theatre: Slaughterhouse, 2 One Act Shows, Anything Goes, Tempest, The Foreigner, Slam, Hot Mikado, Jim Thorpe, Blood Wedding, As I Lay Dying, Oh What A Lovely War, Footloose, The Importance of Being Earnest, acting, tech, you name it. Cheers to all the people, that's why it was so incredible. I heart props. Act well you part.

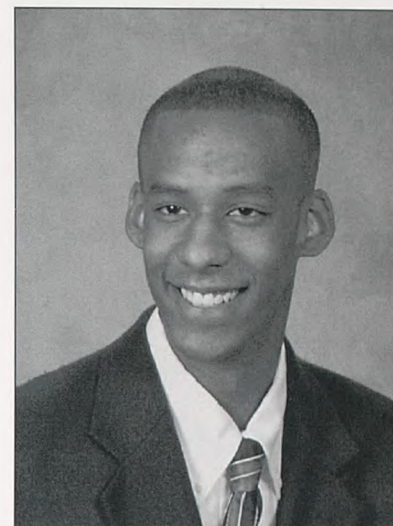

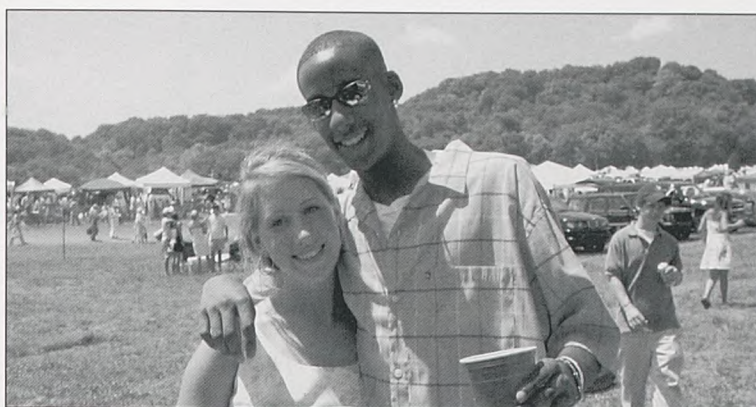

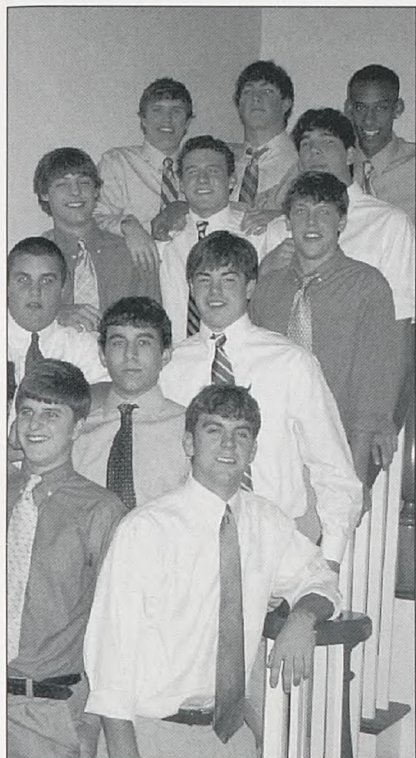

Do what you gotta do, but there's no reason you can't have fun along the way. Long live the HBP. That'll teach you to eat my cake! We just think on the same wavelength. Stand up and take it like the old lady you are! Baseball in the park and sunburns that last a lifetime. Improv lunches. Push! Forget that, let's just chill with a movie, that's fine with me. MPD mean anything to you? Short and sweet - get in, get out, get on your way.

Travel: Ireland, Wyoming, Edinburgh, Alaska, Orlando, London.

'You know, that one was kind of like Vegas.'

Well, that was a trip.

The Jabberwocky

'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves

Did gyre and gimble in the wabe;

All mimsy were the borogoves,

And the mome raths outgrabe.

"Beware the Jabberwock, my son!

The jaws that bite, the claws that catch!

Beware the Jubjub bird, and shun

The frumious Bandersnatch!"

He took his vorpal sword in hand:

Long time the manxome foe he sought—

So rested he by the Tumtum tree,

And stood awhile in thought.

And, as in uffish thought he stood,

The Jabberwock, with eyes of flame,

Came whiffing through the tulgey wood,

And burbled as it came!

One two! One two! And through and through

The vorpal blade went snicker-snack!

He left it dead, and with its head

He went galumphing back.

"And hast thou slain the Jabberwock?

Come to my arms, my beamish boy!

O frabjous day! Callooh! Callay!"

He chortled in his joy.

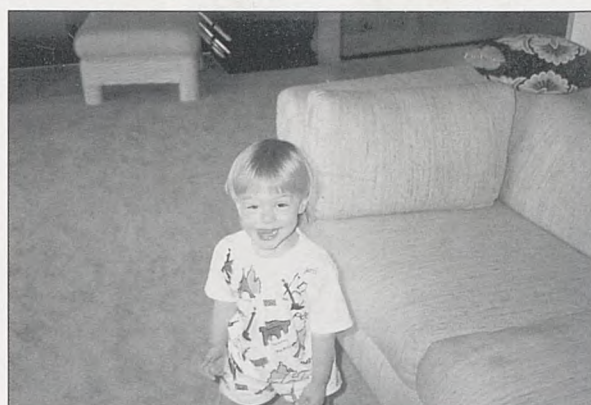

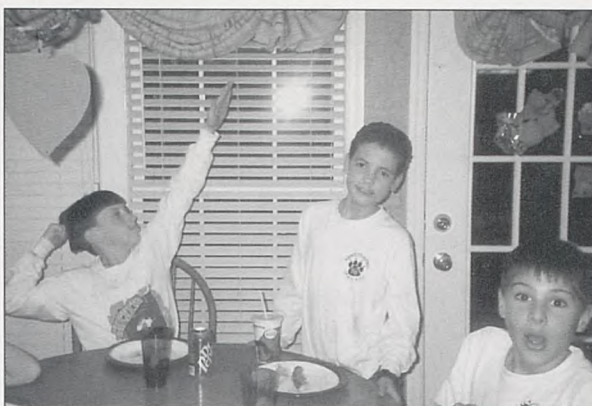

'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves

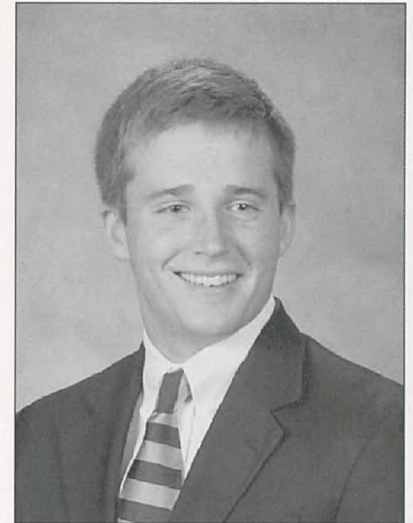

Did gyre and gimble in the wabe;

All mimsy were the borogoves,

And the mome raths outgrabe.

Looking back on these 6 years, I can not believe all the great times I've had. I have had some of the greatest teachers I could have ever asked for. Coach Elliott, you are by far the greatest math teacher I ever had. Your willingness to help me in any way possible really made a difference for me, and I can't thank you enough. Mr. Moxley, you have taught me to love literature, and to love to write. Mr. Jenkins, I have really enjoyed my time in your classes and advisory. You have been a great teacher and advisor, and I will miss getting to hang out in your advisory. Coach Hood, keep the spirit of Team Newman alive. Will, Buck and Billy, you guys have been my best friends throughout MBA, and I will really miss all the great times we had together. Matt and Wynne, I will never forget the great times we shared in the duck blind and the turkey woods. Mom, I can never thank you enough for getting me through MBA. Your support meant more to me than anyone else's. Dad, you taught me everything I know about hunting and the outdoors. I feel I would not be the person I am today without your teachings and guidance. Lauren, you have been the greatest sister anyone could have asked for. Have fun in high school, and don't be afraid to call me if you need anything or just want to talk. I'll miss all of you next year. Lastly, I would like to thank Jesus for carrying me through some the tough times I've experienced over the past 6 years.

Well, it's been an interesting four years here at MBA, and now, here's my senior bio. Church, wrestling, music, and schoolwork were my most important activities. I've learned a lot during this time. I've probably learned more about life and about who I am and who I want to be than I've learned about anything academic. But what I have learned hasn't come from simply going to this school, or taking certain classes, or playing certain sports. It's come from putting everything I have into what I believe I should. I don't have any outstanding achievements, and I certainly don't have an impressive résumé, but I'm happy with what I've done because I have poured my life into the things that I have loved. For instance, I loved wrestling, and so I worked hard at it all the time. I got injured a lot, lost a lot, won a lot, laughed, cried, felt great, felt terrible, and experienced an endless list of trials and emotions. But win or lose, I learned, and I grew in ability and character. If I had taken a mediocre attitude to it all, I never would have learned a thing.

I had a lot of good times in high school, but I also spent a lot of time moping around. That wasn't good, nor was it fun. If you don't try to enjoy life, you usually don't. I'm finding out that no matter how hard your life or your work is, you can just about always enjoy it if you want to. You just have to quit complaining and see the good in things and in people. That's a huge one: people. If there's one lesson in life that everybody needs to learn and keep learning, it's that all people are individuals. I don't know how many times I've had to relearn this concept. Everybody's like you. Every person alive is just another human with very similar feelings and needs to yours. I wish I'd given people the benefit of the doubt more often in the past few years. I'd understand people better and be a much nicer guy if I had. If you understand people as individuals, it should be clear how and why you should do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

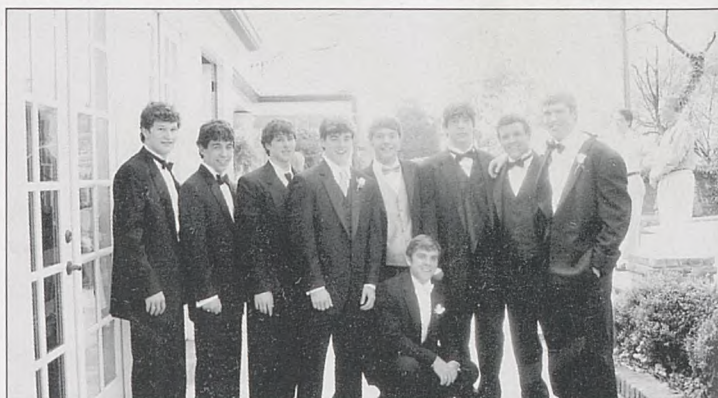

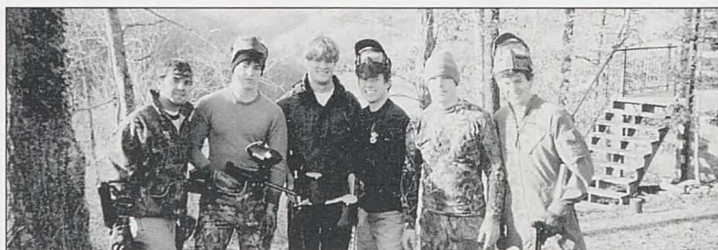

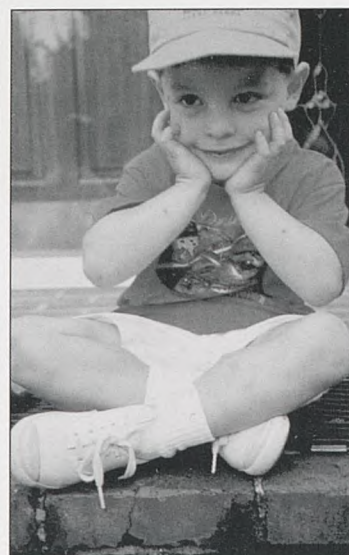

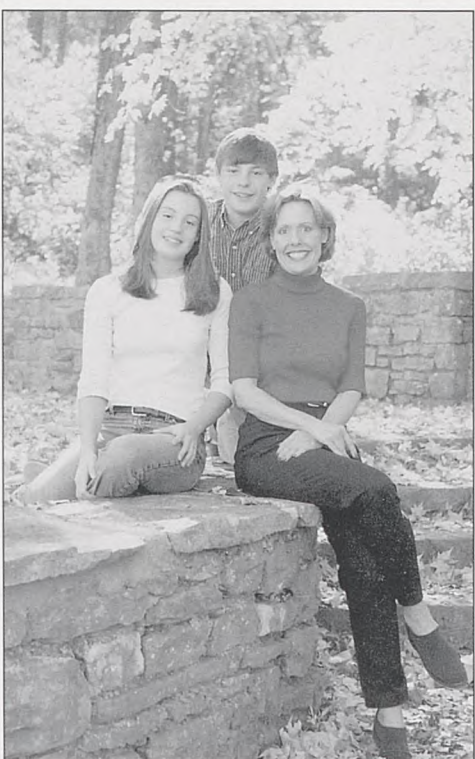

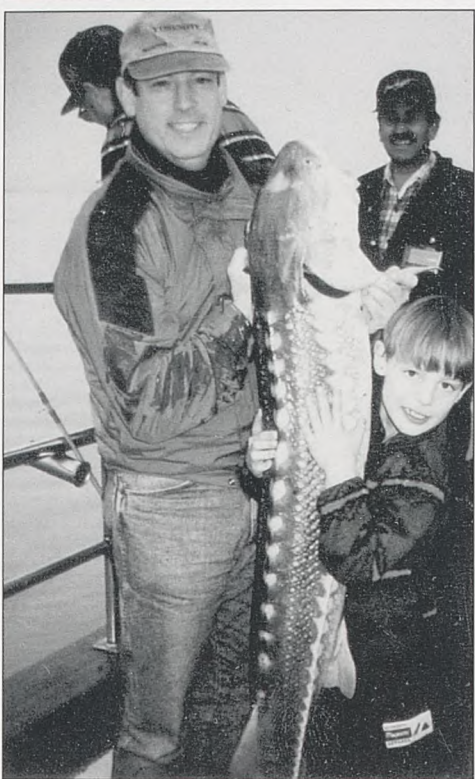

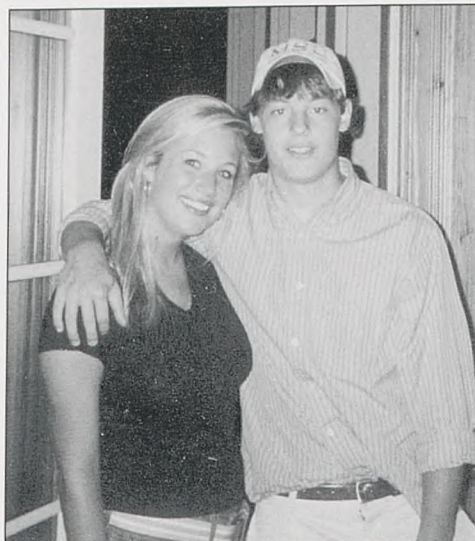

I guess that's all the really important stuff I have to say. In the end, I'm glad to have gone to MBA, but mostly I'm just glad to be alive.

Though I have absolute respect for just about all my teachers and appreciate the knowledge and work ethic that MBA has instilled in me, getting through the past six years at school has not been easy. I don't mean I struggled to pass my classes, but I mean it's been hard trying to find your place in a community that deep inside you know you don't belong to. It's no coincidence that I'm going to a college next year that no one else from MBA is going to or has gone to in several years. Luckily, I was able to find my own place, my own happiness, my own friends in my real community that I was apart of before I came to MBA and will be apart of long after I leave and lose touch with MBA. To Athens and CSR, it's been an incredible ride and I'm sad to be done, you all have been my best friends and I know I can always count on you for anything. To Scott, Max, Jamie and the rest of my fellow tribe members...it's rough being a member of the tribe at MBA but I know y'all can get through it. To Jeff, Nadav, and Justin, thanks for making R-board so incredible...we'll always be a team. Laura, you've brought me so much happiness over this year... I love you so much for that. To Mom, Dad, Katie, Gideon, Buddy and Barley, I love you all so much and thank you for always being there. To all my friends...call me if you're in D.C.!

Varsity Golf (1-4)

My MBA experience has turned out pretty well, but I know in my heart that I could not have made the journey alone. I have to give all the credit to God and my family for supporting me every step of the way. This school has taught me everything I will need to know to make it in life and I am so thankful that I was given the opportunity.

Seventh grade: Mr. Wims: "Guys, quit blowin paper"; "let me go make a quick phone call"
8th period: Mr. Brown: "John, let me put a wrestling move on ya"

Eighth grade: Mr. Bowers: “Be a boy, Buttrey”; “Boys, have you never seen squirrels in heat before?”; “Jewett, quit messing with the computer”; “Boys, instead of buying a $100,000 Bell Tower, we should split the money between the students.”

Ninth grade: Mr. Pruitt: "On a scale from one to freshman"; "The fed-x truck carrying our pigs has been hijacked"; Mr. Golenor: "There is the gypsy"; throwing boomerangs

Tenth grade: Dr. Clements: "Guys, isn't this fun!???"

Eleventh grade: Mrs. Villavicencio: Everyone getting demerits without warning; Mr. Tillman: "Wake-up M-ppppppppppp" Mr. Jones: "Hey guys", "Uhhhhhh PARKER!, uhhhhh RYAN!, uhhhhh JEFF!"

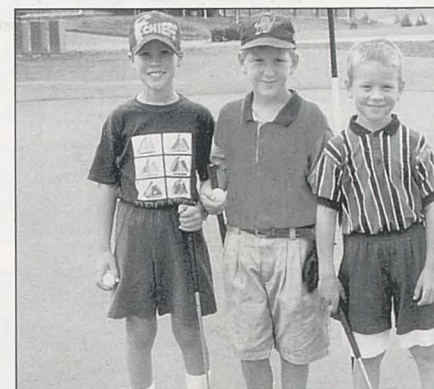

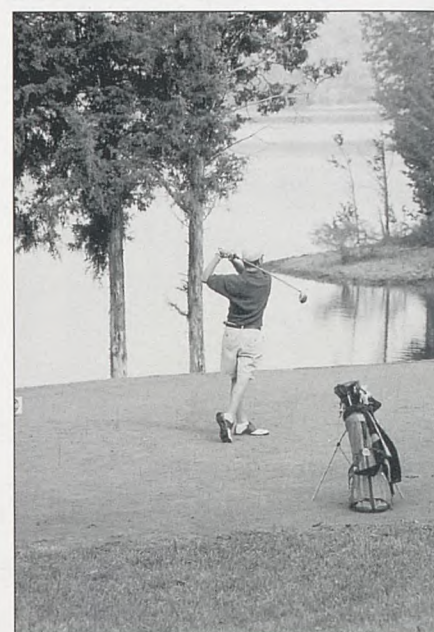

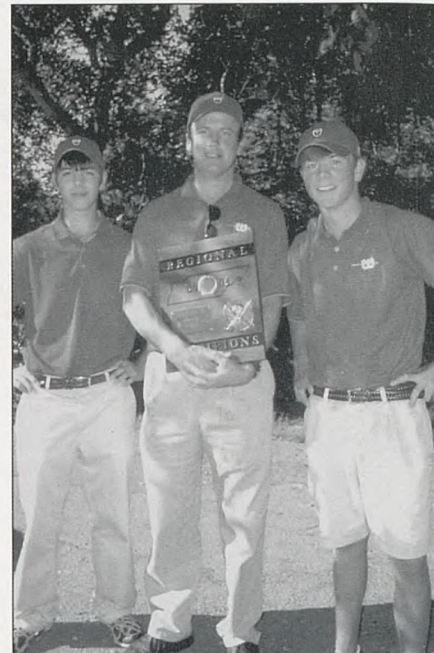

Twelfth grade: Mr. Barclay: "You guys are not allowed to use the red chairs"; Mr. Mathews: "Did I ever tell you I played in the NFL for 11 years"; Dr. Kinch: "That is exactly wrong"; Rosie: "Get crackin', you turkey heads!"

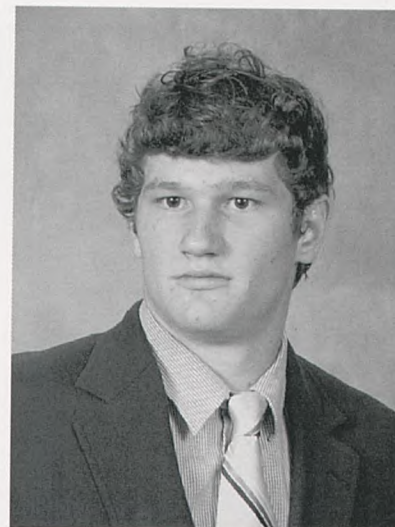

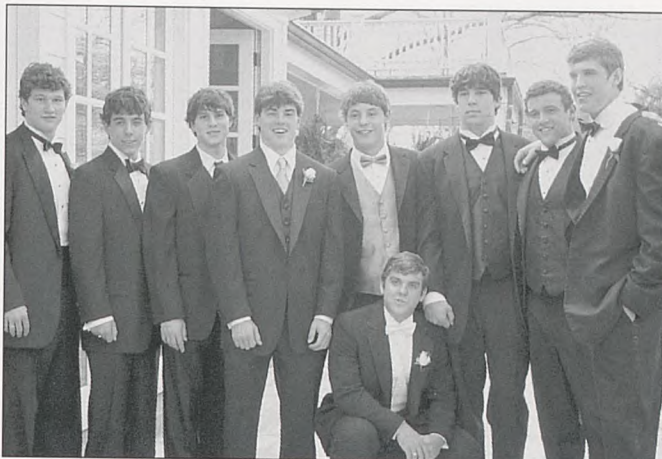

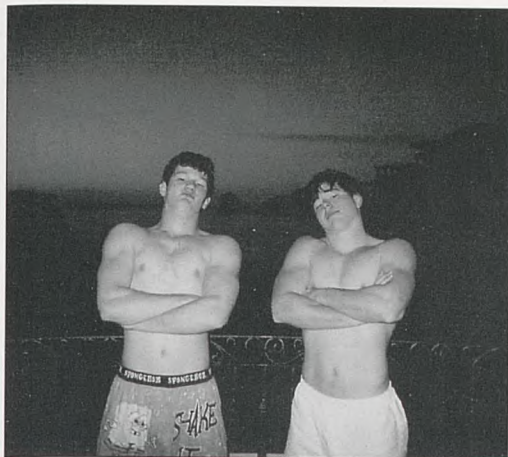

Golf Quotes:

Coach Caldwell: "Did I just hit something?";
"Coach Caldwell, the goal this week is not to hit any street signs with the bus"; "Mac, you just missed the widest fairway in the history of golf"; "Guuuuuuuuuuuuuusss!"

Coach Kelly: "Guys, we need to stop by the gas station after dinner"; "How in the world can we spend over $120 at Pizza Hut?"; "Mr. Kelly, we are going to be late for our tee time if you don't come out of your room."

Thanks to MBA for all of the opportunities it provides, to my parents for sticking with me through both the good and bad, to Rebecca for being a best friend, and to the faculty as a whole, who are what truly make this school what it is.

P.S. I love my family and I want them to know that I would do anything for them. My friends and many of the faculty members have helped me through the years while attending MBA, and I want to thank them for putting up with me. For all those people who are not very supportive of me, I just want to say that I'm gone and I don't need to put up with you anymore. I also want to thank Buck Curley for helping me with my Senior Bio.

I would also like to make a shout out to Will who has been a good friend through some hard times and some really fun times. Finally I would like to thank my parents who have been understanding and an unceasing supply of love and support. I know that I will have some great memories in the years to come, but I will never forget my high school years.

As a naïve, little sophomore entering a new lifestyle, I was scared of the tasks that I would be facing in my long journey throughout my MBA career. At times, I wanted to give up, and I questioned if this school was the best choice for me. As I struggled, the desire to leave became stronger. Now, I am sure that my attendance at MBA was a very important step. My hardships have made me stronger, smarter, and more confident. Without these experiences, I would be a completely different person. Because of the influences by my peers and teachers to improve, I have progressed further than I could anywhere else. A casual "hi" to the screaming "Naaaabil!!" make me feel more comfortable in this high-paced society. The intense dedication of the community has allowed me to develop mentally and physically beyond my dreams. I am confident that I will be able survive and succeed in any future endeavors that I will encounter. The outstanding preparation that I have received at MBA will never be matched. I will truly miss my adventures at Montgomery Bell Academy.

To all of my friends: we've been through a lot, but you have all been indispensable. Good luck to all of you in college and beyond. No matter what anyone says, you are great people. And thank you to all of my friends who graduated in years past, I owe you guys a lot. To my friends who will still be in high school next year: good luck, and enjoy the rest of it. And all of the experiences have been great: National Geographic, burning down the woods and paintball at Nick's; the HBP; London, Scotland, Ireland, and all the stories they've left me to tell; the many hours spent at Jim's house over the summers; worthless nights of Grand Theft Auto out in Bellevue; all the late-night walks and drives; a thousand nights at Café Coco ('tailgating your own funeral') and the Donut Den; never failing to mock me, especially when I'm grounded; all the Hendersonville adventures; baseball with Waldo and all the others; the usual route to Walgreen's and back before Gov. Inspector rehearsal; Rocco trying to kill me (more than once); too many games of Super Smash Bros in my basement; and every other stupid, fun, insane, cool, senseless and great thing we've ever done. It's certainly been worth it.

Many, many thanks to Malcolm Morrison for helping make my high school experience what it was, for teaching me so much even though I was never in one of your classes proper, and being such a fabulous director. A thousand thank-you's to Rosie Paschall for absolutely everything; you have truly been a great mentor, teacher and friend. Many thanks to you, Andrew Rozario, for always encouraging me, giving me so many chances to further my filmmaking, and helping me, and for helping make far-off schemes a reality. Also, thanks to James Threalkill and Ms. Brown: though you aren't at MBA anymore, you are responsible for sparking my interest in the arts and teaching me so much. Thanks to Mr. Coverstone for being a great advisor. Thanks you, Dirk Wendtorf, for everything you taught us and for your support and friendship. Many thanks go to Mr. Womack for being a great teacher and always doing everything you can for your students. Curse you Dr. Seay for breaking my vow of never getting on stage for a musical. But I'll forgive you for being an amazing director and taking us to and past state in the one-act competition. Thank you, Dr. Batten, for being the driving force behind Archives and being an incredible teacher. Thanks Dr. Fuller for your work as a director and teacher and taking us to the Fringe Festival. And thank you, Mr. Klausner, for putting up with me as a teacher and a senior applying for college. Thanks to everyone at MBA that contributes to art and theater: those programs have taught me so much and been such a great experience in every way. I also want to thank everyone who has helped make this school a good experience, and my parents for giving me no other option and working so hard to help me to get where I am today. You are truly amazing people. And thanks to Christopher, William, and James for being brothers that no one could ask better of.

Theatre all over the place (9-12), Model UN (9-12), Youth Legislature (9), International/German Club (9-12)

Inside jokes I don't really have. There was the lunch table the second half of fifth period sophomore year: Ed, Jim, and sometimes le Spence; there was a whole lot of Donut Den craziness in there, a whole lot of theater craziness—theater IS craziness, including but not limited to Princess, Young Man, Fun Size, and Sunshine in the early years, and it seems like the inside jokes faded after that. Twelfth Night and As I Lay Dying were best. All four years, frankly, were best—especially any time spent in the art room, theater, or any of the spaces in between. The past three years have been immensely better and more sane because of a certain Rosie Paschall; thank you for being fantastic, and also as to other teachers who rock: Mr. Womack, the trio of awesomeness that is MBA theater, and pretty much everyone else who taught me. Mostly English teachers, for some reason. Go friends, go family, especially James and Michael. Go us. Christopher, too (not an afterthought). Thank you, Mom and Dad. Dad and Mom. You both put up with too much to send us here, and everything was worth it.

Everything was worth it.

One day I know I'll need some solid reassurance that this was real. I want nothing more than a resolutely tangible something to place in this column, so that it might stand as a testament to everything that has been life up to this moment. I know it's barely begun, and I know that 18 isn't but a small fraction of 81, but time is made up only of moments, and short ones at that. Yet, these have been moments of the greatest ecstasy, despair, hope, humiliation, disgust, boredom, joy, and love I could possibly imagine, and nothing could mean more.

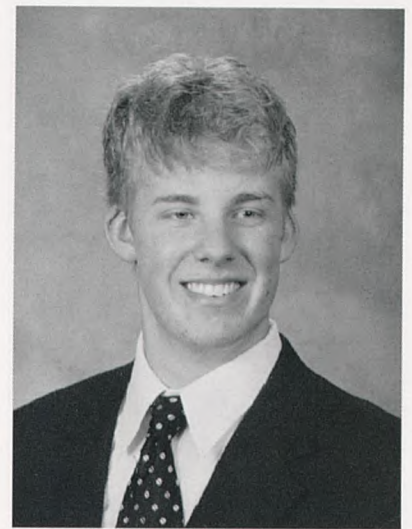

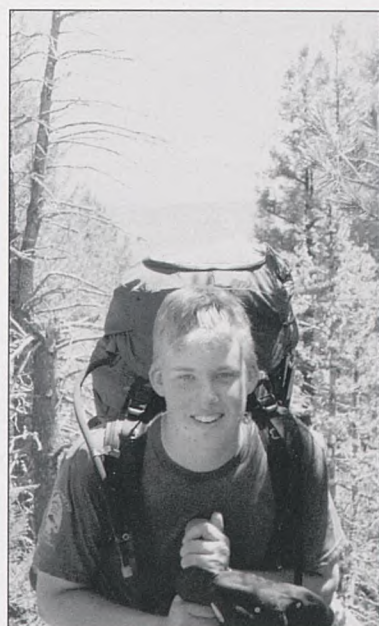

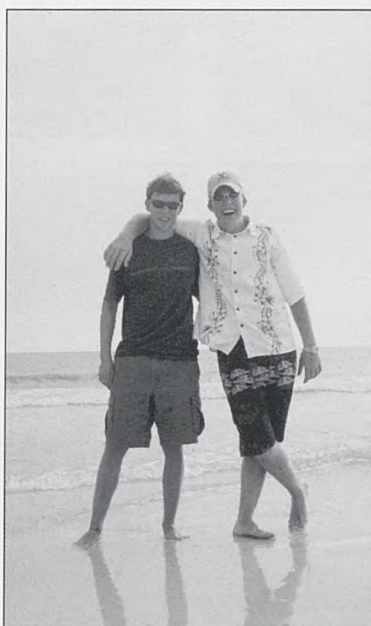

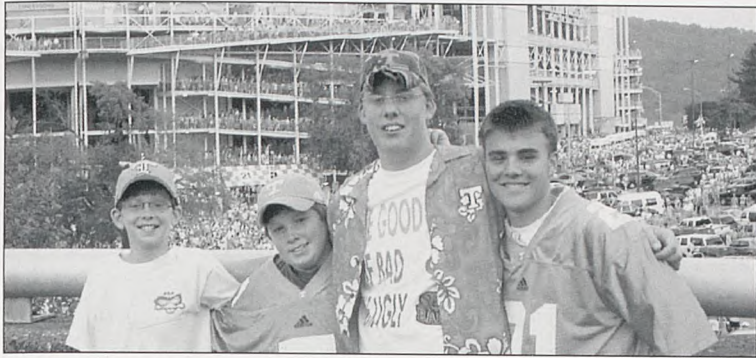

The awful catch in the whole system is that nothing makes sense until it's over, when Galileo and glucose, Korea and Kallikrates, championships and celebrations, inside jokes and drama, trust and discontent all meld together to the one long story of high school. It wasn't a tragedy or an epic, a comedy or a commentary, but something else altogether more complete, and I know I'll soon forget what I meant by that. Time won't stop, that much is pretty clear, but I never want to forget this life: all the days and all the nights we've seen. They haven't been wasted, and they were as real as can be, but ten years from now there will be little left to show that this ever happened, that we were ever here, or that we ever loved like this.

This is growing up, and it shows no signs of stopping, but each and every one of you has changed my life. I love you: my family, friends, teachers, mentors, heroes, enemies, strangers, and everyone in-between. You have made me who I am today, and there's no place else I would rather be but here and now. You will always be a part of me, irreplaceably inherent to every moment of whatever comes next, and that will never change.

Someday, we might buy different clothes, drive different cars, say and even think different things, but maybe one of those days we can get together again, cry at the good memories and laugh at the bad, as this warm feeling comes welling up again. Because we shared this together. And that means everything.

"For whatever you live is life." — Robert Penn Warren

Those gentlemen mean more to me than they will probably ever know, and have done more things for me than I could name. I would like to thank all of my teachers, some of whom don't get treated with as much admiration as they deserve. And finally, my Passage friends many of whom are the foundation of my support base and will be forever and ever, Amen.

Varsity Golf : 9-11; 8th Grade HVAC Champion!

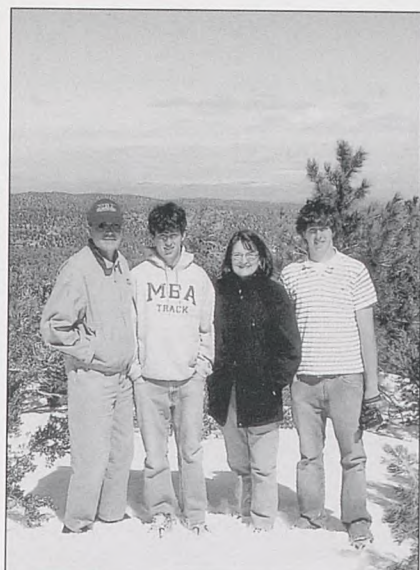

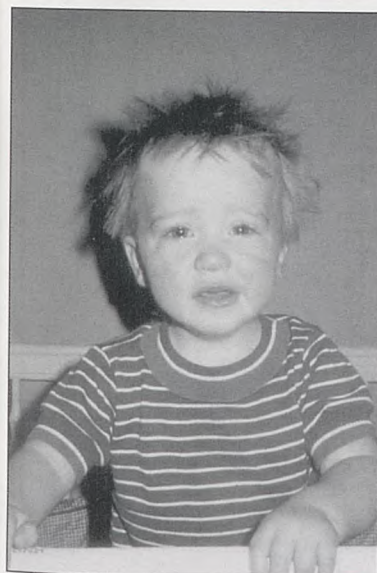

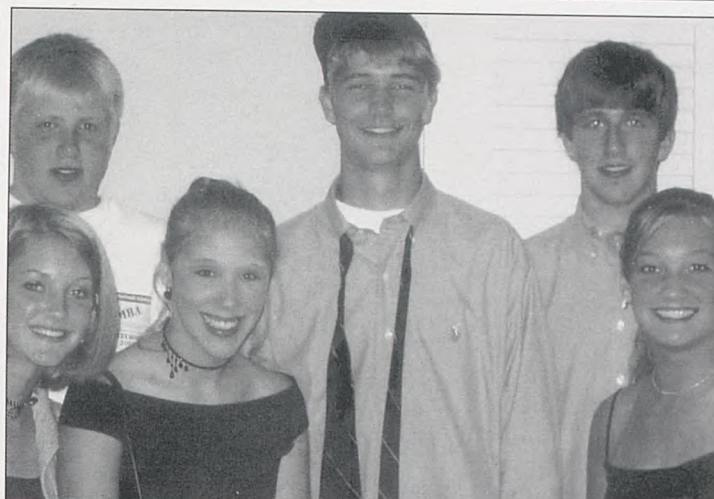

It's all over!! Six years gone for all of us ballerz who made it through the camp. So many memories and demerits in junior school. Mrs. Steele made sure I would have to come to school every Saturday morning. But everything always seemed so innocent in the junior school. John Rocco was even a normal human back then. I said "back then".... MIKE JONES. Nevertheless, I have a difficult time remembering anything in the junior school. It all seems to be a blur! Oh, yeah, Peete's untimely incident!!! Anyways, high school . . . still not many black girls at Harpeth Hall or St. Cecilia. Aight, I must go to Opry Mills to find the females! Will I ever be able to forget Coopwood or Mike Swett? We always know we can find Michael at his daddy's restaurant. Oh yeah, Michael knows why he reminds me of Lewis Dawson. Coop keep rolling on dubs, but won't pick up his phone. Fast times at Hurricanes on teen night. Geah!! Geah!! Maximus always flowing with those weak rhymes. Max should only stick to playing poker. Peete . . . COOKIE MONSTER loves his girlfriend. David "homeslice" needs to stay in the right crowd. Parkes (Juan) "fifty-cap" Brittain. Rascoe, Regen, all Vandy sports fans don't need to hold a grudge against me. Most people in my class think "Pac-Man" Adam Jones is just a bad person. You can't talk to me about the NFL. Everybody who I had Madden football tournaments with . . . peace! I hope to see everyone again someday. Hopefully, this education will pay off for us big time in these next few years. Shout outs: Mrs. Lechleiter and Mrs. Swett. Sorry to anyone whom I have left out. Time to go to the real world. Catch everyone on the rebound.

Personal: I've made many friends, but some have a special place in my heart. Scott, Since AAU you are maybe the nicest person I have ever met or will meet. God has a path for you, and I have no doubt you will follow it. Brooks, you are favorite catcher and an even better friend. You are a buddy for life. Rascoe, you would do anything for anybody and I'm glad we have been able to become friends. McLean, we don't always see eye to eye, and you need to calm down (i.e. Vandy Games) but somehow we get along. Whitson, few words can describe you, but I know you will have fun at Furman and with whatever # Meredith. Nick, you're my buddy, enough said. Ben, you will someday be an action figure or action hero. Wheeler, you are too smart. To Coach Anderson, Coach Wims, and Coach Martin, thank you for pushing me to be my best and for helping me with college. Mr. O'Neal, you are truly a great man. You are the father I never had, and I hope you can help me continue to grow. I love you for being the man you are and helping me become the man I will be. Mom, I made it this far, and it is because of you; your strength, courage, and love our attributes I can only hope to match. I love you and Penny and Cory.

I came to MBA in the 7th grade. Nothing big ever really happened for me outside of school until the 10th grade. In the 9th grade I stumbled into a rifle team practice, and ended up shooting with them until my senior year. Rifle was a safe place for me during most of high school. Whenever things got bad I would just shoot as long as I could, at home and in practice. Eventually I got good at it, and it led me to being on the second place team at nationals and high rankings in other big competitions. In the fall of my senior year I realized that rifle wasn't making me happy anymore, and that it had stopped serving as a positive part of my life. I abandoned the rifle team and any hopes of being in the military, as awkward a fit as that would've been, that I had carried along with it. It didn't take long before I jokingly said that I could join the diving team to Coach Carter, and ended up actually doing it. It's been a strange time for me at MBA, and I wish that I could say that I didn't have any regrets. The most influential class that I have ever taken has been Spanish. Freshman year it served as my greatest source of frustration. However, from sophomore year on it became the class that shaped my way of thinking the most. Spanish led me to Costa Rica, where I spent the most influential month of my life, and it will lead me around the world. I can't wait to graduate but I don't want to leave for some strange reason. I'm glad that I came to MBA, and I can't imagine myself without going here.

To the Class of 2006, Thank you. Thank you for being a part of my life for the past four years. Thank you for making me laugh at least once a day. Thank you for the pointless debates, the hilarious stories, the stupid actions, and the random outbursts in class—all of these things are what I will remember about MBA. To James, Tyler, Lewis, Will, Jim, Hunter, Wynne, Jordan, Terrell, Brooks, Justin, and Gray — thanks for being my closest friends. Y'all are the ones that kept me laughing and gave me the majority of those unforgettable memories. Will and Lewis you guys were always by my side and thanks for everything; I found two life friends and you guys and thank you for that. Everyone of you guys in the class of '06 is so incredible in your own individual ways, and I am thankful that I was able to experience each of your personalities because they have helped to mold me into who I am. I have never met a group of guys that could be as thoughtful, sincere, candid, and real. I never could have guessed that 118 guys could be as close and get along with each other as well as we do.

To the DeMoss family, thank you for being my home away from home. Thank you for being my second family; you all have taught me so many life lessons. The connection has become an inseparable bond. To Justin Elliot, you are an amazing role model, an incredible "big brother," and thank you for always being just a call away. To my Mom, thank you for always being there for me, supporting me, and always asking about my problems even when you know I won't budge. Without you, I would be nothing. You are more important to me than you will ever know.

High school is a time when you find out who you really are, who your friends really are, what your goals in life really are, and what your beliefs and morals really are. I've been through the good and the bad times in the past four years, but I wouldn't change them for the world. These connections I've made at my time on the Hill will last me for a lifetime, and I am so grateful for that.

"Life is short, don't waste time worrying about what people think of you. Hold on to the ones that care, in the end they will be the only ones there."

Thanks to everyone who made this such a great time for me. To all of the teachers and friends that have helped me along the way, thanks. To my family, you have all done so much for me, it is impossible to thank you enough. My parents especially, who have tried so hard to help me in any way they can. Dad, for all the heart-to-heart talks we've had. Mom, for all of the support and love you've given me.

First and foremost, to all the teachers at MBA, whether you had the extreme privilege of teaching me or not, there are no words to describe the effect that you have on your students every day in everything that you do. You are the men and women behind the scenes that have made MBA what it is, and I praise you for everything that you have done. To all my football coaches, I'll never be able to thank you enough for the lessons that you have taught me and the good times that you have given me. Coach Redmond, despite the excruciating pain that I have experienced in your presence, you have always been there for me both on and off the field, and you have no idea how much your friendship means to me. To my DB brothers, hold down the fort next year. I'll miss the DB dinners at Outback, but I'm a DB FOR LIFE. Callie, if I had to write down all the memories we have together, the list would never end. Thanks for the good times, and I hope they don't end. To all my friends, you are amazing, and I love you all. Without the memories we have together, high school would mean nothing. Most importantly, to my family, I may take some things that you have given me for granted, but I am thankful for it all. I love you so much, and I would not have been able to do anything in life without your support and motivation.

The 2005 MBA Varsity Cross Country team continued the legacy of excellence and dominance the middle Tennessee area has come to know and respect. The season began on the horse trails of Percy Warner Park as Senior Captains David Reynolds, Bracey Wilson, and Kevin Seitz kicked off the season in the blistering heat of early June. With the advent of July, more runners joined the voluntary sessions and the team started to take shape. Feeling confident about the meets to come, the Big Red anxiously prepared for the Drake Invitational.

The Drake Invitational and the subsequent following duel meets proved to be easy triumphs for the cross country team, but these victories turned out to be Pyrrhic as three of the top five (Kevin Seitz, Bracey Wilson, and Stockton Beveridge) were lost for most of the season to injuries. The resilient team continued its march, however, but soon was dealt defeat in the larger meets of the A.F. Bridges and Tennessee Classic. Though achieving respectable finishes in both of these meets, the team was disappointed that MBA did not place in the top five. With this chip on its shoulder, MBA traveled to the Jesse Owens Classic in Moulton, Alabama, with a shot at redemption. The Big Red shocked the competition with its remarkable display of talent and depth, finishing 1st in a large field of high schools. sophomore Tyler Ramsden and senior David Reynolds both placed in the top 15 of the meet, with juniors Hayes Arnold and Jonathan Usry, freshman Baker Mulherin, and senior Jason Wallace also contributing to the victory.

With the early meets of the season completed, the cross country team turned its attention to the three biggest meets of the season, the Metro, Region, and State Championships. Although coming off the momentum of the victory at the Jesse Owens, the team could not repeat as Metro champs but still managed to finish an impressive third place. The team then turned its eyes to Region in which they qualified for state with a 2nd place finish just behind Brentwood Academy. At state, the MBA cross country team paced itself to 6th, one place below where they would have liked to finish.

Individual honors went out to sophomore Tyler Ramsden (3rd team All-State, 1st team All-Metro), senior David Reynolds (1st team All-Metro), and senior Jason Wallace (1st team All-Metro). Special thanks to Coaches Pruitt, DeYoung, Russ, Frost, and Sharbel for running in every practice, preparing various workouts and distance runs and helping the team mature through its injury problems. Guys, thank you for all your hard work. It was an honor to lead you through this year. I'll never forget it.

The 2005 MBA football team ended up with a record of 8 wins and 3 losses. The Big Red began the year with the toughest schedule in MBA football history, facing three eventual state champions. After a 1-2 start which included a memorable 17-13 victory over Louisville's Trinity High School, the Big Red rolled over its next seven opponents. This winning streak included convincing wins over respectable programs such as JPII and CPA as well as thrilling victories over DII rivals. In divisional play, the Red dominated Christian Brothers and Baylor by 13 and 14 points respectively while defeating BA, Father Ryan, and McCallie in hard-fought thrillers.

Senior leadership was crucial to the Big Red's success this year on both sides of the ball. Seniors Andy Snyder, Michael Swett, Mitchell

Williams, and Drew Carney were all elected to the First-Team All-Division Team, while Andrew Warfield and Daniel Hightower were noted Honorable Mention in the Division. Captain Andy Snyder was the workhorse of the Big Red offense. Behind his offensive line led by seniors Rascoe Dean, David Wheeler, Regen Jewett, and Billy Billington, Snyder rushed for 982 yards and 11 touchdowns. Drew Carney led the Big Red in receiving yards with 462 yards and 4 touchdowns, while Will Hackett also headed the receiving corps. Despite injuries to senior linebackers Parker Prevost and Daniel Hightower, the MBA defense remained one of the top defenses in the division. The defensive line was led by Michael Swett, Will Fitzgerald, and James Banker, while Luke Brown led the linebacking corps. The Big Red defense intercepted 11 passes, paced by seniors Mitchell Williams (4) and Andrew Warfield (2). Gray Palmer led the team in tackles with 46.5. Whether on or off the field, all the seniors contributed to the overall success of this year's team.

The 2006 football team would like to thank all of the coaches, managers, and trainers that contributed to the successes we had and the memories we made this past season. The season could not have been nearly as successful without the hard work and selfless contributions made by trainer Chad Breedlove and manager Andrew Mills. Aside from the tradition, success, and friends one plays with, the coaches are the main factor that make the experience of playing MBA football so memorable. The whole football team, especially the seniors, would like to recognize all of the coaches for their dedication and commitment to this year's football team. We appreciate all they have done.

During the spring of 2005, while most students and teachers anxiously awaited the arrival of summer, the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors on the golf team began working toward making the 2006 season a major success. With four very strong players in the starting line up and several other players with the potential of shooting rounds in the 70s, MBA was preparing one of its better teams in recent varsity golf history. The unprecedented addition of the Golf Club of Tennessee as MBA's home course seemed to be an exclamation point for the golf team's desires not only to compete in the state tournament, but also to win.

The official 2006 varsity golf season started in early August when five players traveled to Tullahoma, TN, to compete in the annual Stan McNabb Tournament held at Lakewood Country Club. The team was able to clinch a second-place finish as a result of Rob Campbell's individual third-place finish and score of 71. Later that month, the team traveled to the Old Natchez Country Club to compete in the Bruin Invitational. The event was a major success and turning point because all five players participating in the tournament posted rounds at or below 74 with Rob Campbell again shooting the low team score, 70. The MBA team took first place in the tournament and beat several regional teams such as Brentwood High School, Father Ryan, Brentwood Academy, and BGA. The team was able to replicate this strong performance in September at an eighteen-hole match against Marshall County, firing a combined team score of 293 (avg. player score of 73.25).

Hopes were high as the team prepared to go into October and play in the regional and state tournaments. The team ended the regular season with a record of 11-1. The regional tournament at Champions Run golf course, however, turned out to be a disappointing performance as the MBA team, the clear favorite to win the tournament, placed third behind BGA and BA. Barely qualifying for the state tournament, the team was looking for redemption. Again, the great play that occurred during the regular season did not materialize at the state tournament. The team did manage to place fifth in the tournament beating Christian Brothers, BA, and CPA.

This was a year like no other for MBA Rifle. It started in July with an amazing second place finish in the Junior Olympic National Air Rifle Team Championship at Western Kentucky University. The Big Red Rifle team of Andrew Davis, Joseph Walkowicz, Erik Swanson and John Fontaine fired a two-day score of 46002/4800 – just one point behind our perennial rival Shelby County Kentucky who won the title. This tournament is essentially the de facto high school team national rifle championship. With the start of school and our fall training program, Fontaine announced that he was, reluctantly, giving up rifle so that he could devote more time to trombone. Six weeks later, Swanson left the team so that he could participate in theater productions and swimming.

With the loss of two outstanding athletes, the complexion of our year was turned upside down. We never lost a match to an in-state rival but in competition with nationally ranked out-of-state teams which comprised most of our schedule, we couldn't find two shooters with a hot hand to back up Davis and Walkowicz. There is, however, a silver lining to the challenges we faced this year! We ended the year in April with a one-point victory over Siegel High School for the Tennessee High School Rifle Championship – our tenth in a row! We also had nine freshman team members who demonstrated extraordinary promise.

At year end, the Tennessee Shooting Sports Association named Davis, Walkowicz and Scott Rowenczak to the 2006 Tennessee State High School All-State Rifle Team. Three years ago, the James E. Stevens Award was established to honor a graduating senior for significant contributions to the rifle team while demonstrating high moral character, strong work ethic, and concern for other team members. The 2006 Stevens Award was presented to Andrew Davis. Davis lettered in rifle five times, earned All-State honors four times and tirelessly worked with younger shooters.

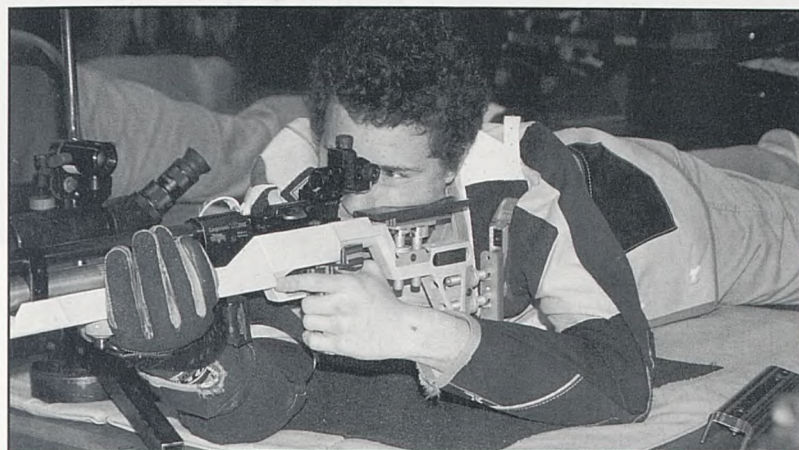

The addition to our program this year that will have the most impact over time is Coach Joe Sharbel who retired from the U.S. Marine Corps this past summer and now teaches History at MBA. Sharbel, who fired on the rifle team at Vanderbilt, coordinates the running and weight training that all rifle team members do each week to lower heart rate and build core body strength. He reorganized the training to make it more interesting and a better use of time.

Twenty rifle athletes lettered this year – a record. Team Captain Taylor Shope, Jordan Klein, Davis and Rowenczak all graduate leaving a very young but strong program for the future! Bring it on!

The 2005-2006 Varsity Basketball season got off to a rough start as the team endured several close losses in its very competitive early season schedule. Following a string of tough games, the Big Red headed to Memphis for the Residence Inn Holiday Invitational. The tournament proved to be the turning point for the squad as they performed well, earning a dramatic double overtime win and ultimately a third-place finish in the tourney. The Big Red showed its newfound unity as they returned home to promptly win four of their next six games, including a long awaited and emotional road win over Father Ryan in front of a large contingency of rowdy Irish fans. Over the next month the team continued its success with wins over Division I foes White House and Wilson Central, and a twenty-point manhandling of eventual DII statesemifinalist, McCallie, in Chattanooga. The Red propelled itself into the region tournament with a solid win over a young, but talented Ensworth squad and an exciting offensive barrage on Senior Night with a one-point victory over AA state contender, David Lipscomb. After opening the tournament with a 1-1 record, the Big Red ground out a physical, elimination game win over the host team, John Paul II, to earn its second State Tournament birth in three years. Though the season ended after a loss to state runner up Evangelical Christian in the first round, the varsity team has much to be proud of for its 2005-2006 campaign. The seniors would like to say a special thanks to Coaches Anglin, MacMahan, and Was for all of their patience and effort to get this year's team to reach its potential.

Whoever said bowling wasn't a sport didn't know what they were talking about. What could be more intense? Imagine this: you need two strikes plus nine pins to win your match. The other lane has finished so all eyes are on you. Strike. Someone screams, but, alas, they had dropped their cheesy fries, not seen your strike. Strike two, followed by applause. Your heart pounds as you try to look calm and just pick up nine more pins. It would be really embarrassing if you didn't get them after coming this far. In your backswing the ball bounces off your leg but you persevere, even though everyone knows you messed up. You roll the perfect ball, but as it nears the pins it slows down...and stops.

The 7:00 a.m. alarm rings. Dreaming about bowling again, eh?

This is the typical night for an MBA Bowler. Tossing and turning in a nightmare about that missed spare or dreaming the fantasy of winning the match on three consecutive strikes. The crowd goes wild, you beat the bad guy, get the girl, and everything is fine and dandy in NeverNever Land.

Well, it's not like that. In reality, the Big Red Rollers go about their business quietly, this year posting a final record of 14-4. The team had two matches against sleeper squad

BGA and Catholic rival JPII to clinch second place in the division and earn a bye in the Region Tournament.

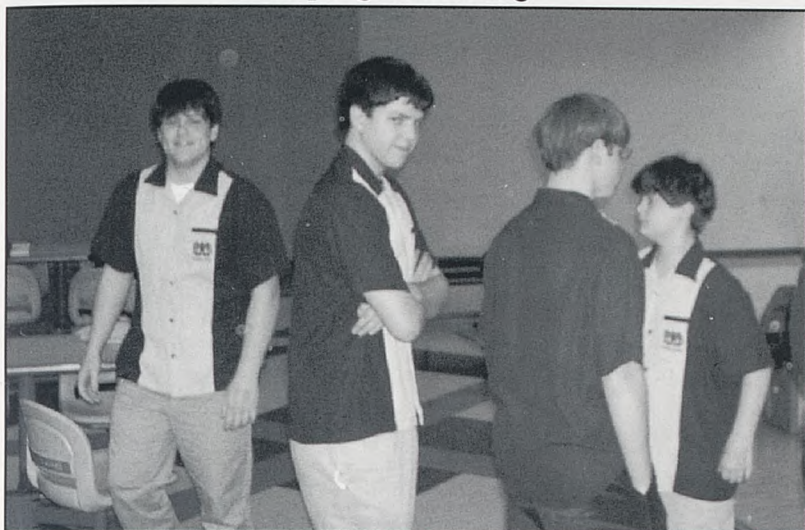

After being pummeled by JPII in Hendersonville early on in the year, the Big Red squad rebounded with a convincing 16-point win at home in mid November and followed it up with a 17-point trouncing up North, 22-5. Dennis Bermudez rolled the game-high 213 and Rand Woodson followed suit with consecutive 193s to help the Big Red Rollers knock down over 3000 pins and lock up the Region Bye.

The team's only losses came at JPII early on and three rather boring matches against Father Ryan. A secret source (whom I can name later if you want) has hinted that the Fighting Irish used performance-enhancing drugs on each occasion. They were also granted leave from school by the Pope in order to hone their bowling skills.

But what makes the 2005-2006 Big Red Rollers so successful? Senior David Robinson contends that "Our balls really know how to knock over the white pins with red necks." But Sophomore Stud Rand Woodson has also played quite a role in the team's success. He's much better than sophomore sensation Tyler Ramsden. Along with Woodson, Robinson, Bermudez, and Hunter Kopald, junior

A little pre-game bonding

Evan has his game face on.

James Michael and senior Michael Crum round out the starting six. Crum has been an exceptional first-year roller, posting the second highest average on the team in his frequent lead-off slot.

The biggest difference between this year's team and last year's Region Champs? "We eat a lot less," says Coach Carr, referring to former Roller David Billhartz's outstanding ability to knock out more than just pins.

Unfortunately student attendance reached an all-time low. In fact, if you are a student reading this article there is roughly a 99.4% chance that you never came to a bowling match all year. If you're a senior reading this article, there is roughly a 45.4% chance that you said you would show up but didn't. The seniors who did show up (and became better men because of it) were Andy Snyder, Andrew Warfield, and Pete Long-Innes.

Other key first-year competitors include Ray Henson, John Andrews, Will Andrews, Kevin Thomas, Houston Creighton, Evan Small, Caldwell Buntin, and Jackson Roberts.

On behalf of the MBA Bowling team, I would like to thank Commander Carr for leading us to the State Tournament once again.

The 2005-06 MBA hockey team finished the regular season with a record of 15-2-1, the best in school history, and the league's best defense, allowing just 24 goals in 19 games. The team had a season high eight-game win streak from January 7 to February 4, headlined by a fantastic victory against the perennial powerhouse and eventual second-place finisher, Centennial High School. After going down 4-2 because of a penalty shot goal with four minutes left in the game, The Red caught fire and scored three goals in three minutes to win 5-4. Despite their best efforts against adversity, the team finished fifth in the post-season, but still earned a berth in the southeast championship tournament where they finished fourth out of eight teams.

Junior winger Rob Phipps, led the MBA team in points with 19 goals and 32 points. He was followed by classmate and center Mark Piana, who netted 16 goals and had 31 points in addition to serving as an alternate captain. The team's most improved player, sophomore forward Chris Fike, was third on the team with 13 goals and 25 points. Senior defenseman and team captain Alex Mazzoni was fourth on the team in scoring with 10 goals and 22 points. Senior winger Joseph Alexander rounded out the top five scorers with 10 goals and 19 points. The Red had five all-star selections this season, tops in the 19-team league. The selections included freshman goalie John Vorholt, junior forwards Phipps and Piana, and senior defensemen Hunter Armistead, also an alternate captain, and starter Alex Mazzoni.

Next season looks to be full of potential as there will be seven seniors and some talented young freshman arriving from across campus to help lead The Big Red hockey team to the playoffs and the Predators Cup.

This year's swim and dive team competed remarkably well in spite of a young roster. Will Hackett, Corey Vaughn, Clint Adkins, Kafkas Everest, Erik Swanson, and Eric Bader provided the senior leadership. Our largest grade participation was from the freshmen, who have a promising future.

During the regular season, our talent was overpowered by superior numbers. In regions, though, the team placed fourth, with individual places by Curtis Lovelace (1st, 2nd) and Tom Wiseman (5th, 6th). In diving, Corey Vaughn, Caldwell Buntin, and Erik Swanson placed 3rd, 4th, and 6th, respectively. At the state meet, Curtis Lovelace was our only swimmer to place individually, earning 2nd in both the breaststroke and individual medley. He achieved All American recognition in both events and looks forward to great success in his junior and senior years. The medley relay of Balser, Lovelace, Wiseman, and Hackett, and the 200 freestyle relay of Lovelace, Ramsden, Hackett, and Wiseman both placed 11th in the state.

Thanks to all the seniors who stepped up this past year and who have contributed to the swim and dive teams of the past. Thanks also to Coach Carter and Coach Villavicencio, who organized and coached both the varsity and junior school teams during the entire season. Thanks as well to the parents who made this season possible. We look forward to much improvement and progress from this young team.

The 2005-2006 MBA Wrestling Team has been one of the most successful wrestling programs in the school's history. A dual meet record of 19-1, two 3rd places at the dual and individual state tournaments as well as becoming only the second school in Tennessee history to place all fourteen starters at the state tournament are just a few of the team's highlights. Their success was due largely to a group of 11 dedicated and talented seniors: Nathan Deutsch, Ben Bellet, Justin Hall, Elliott Nelson, Andy Snyder, Brooks Tate, Jordan Klein, Will Whitson, Nicholas Jacques, Michael Swett, and Allen Riley.

The season got underway in late November with two dual meet victories before heading to the Black Horse Invitational in Memphis. Over the span of two days, the MBA wrestlers came within a half point of winning the entire tournament. MBA finished $\frac{1}{2}$ point behind perennial powerhouse Brother Martin of New Orleans, who consistently ranks in the top 25 in the nation. The third place team was nearly 75 points behind MBA.

After two more dual meet victories the team traveled to the McCallie Invitational at the beginning of winter break. Considered one of the most prestigious tournaments in the Southeast, the tournament is a tough one. MBA placed 8th overall with three wrestlers bringing home medals: Jeff Francis (103) placed 2nd, John Michael Simpson (119) placed 1st, and Justin Hall (152) placed 4th.

Over the break MBA wrestled in two dual meet tournaments, The Sycamore Duals and our own MBA Duals. The team steamrolled both tournaments, winning a total of nine dual meets between the two tournaments.

After returning to school, the MBA grapplers went across town to wrestle in the Father Ryan Invitational, one of the toughest tournaments in the state. The team placed second overall ahead of McCallie, who came in 3rd place. Eleven wrestlers earned medals: Jeff Francis (103) 2nd; John Michael Simpson (119) 1st; Daniel Todd (130) 7th; Mike Herron (135) 7th; Wes McKeithan (140) 7th; Ben Bellet (145) 5th; Justin Hall (152) 5th; Andy Snyder (160) 5th; Brooks Tate (171) 5th; Nicholas Jacques (189) 5th; and Allen Riley (275) 5th.

After the tournament, the team began its march towards the region championship by demolishing DII opponents Brentwood Academy, Pope John Pall II, and Ensworth High School. The final two matches were great wins for the team and its 11 seniors on Senior Night.

The stage was set for the region championship showdown between in town rivals MBA and Father Ryan. With Father Ryan's gym packed to the limit, it was beautiful setting for a landslide victory. MBA wrestlers won 11 of 14 match-ups to bring home the regional championship plaque and bragging rights for the next decade with a 38-13 victory. It was one of the sweetest victories in MBA history.

MBA headed into the state dual tournament as undefeated regional champs. After a heartbreaking loss to eventual champions McCallie by two points in the semi-finals, MBA rebounded and steamrolled Christian Brothers to advance to the consolation finals. Here MBA again wrestled rival Father Ryan and crushed them, making the series 4-0 in MBA's favor over the last two years. The wrestlers returned to the practice room for two grueling weeks and a mindset to win a state championship two weeks later.

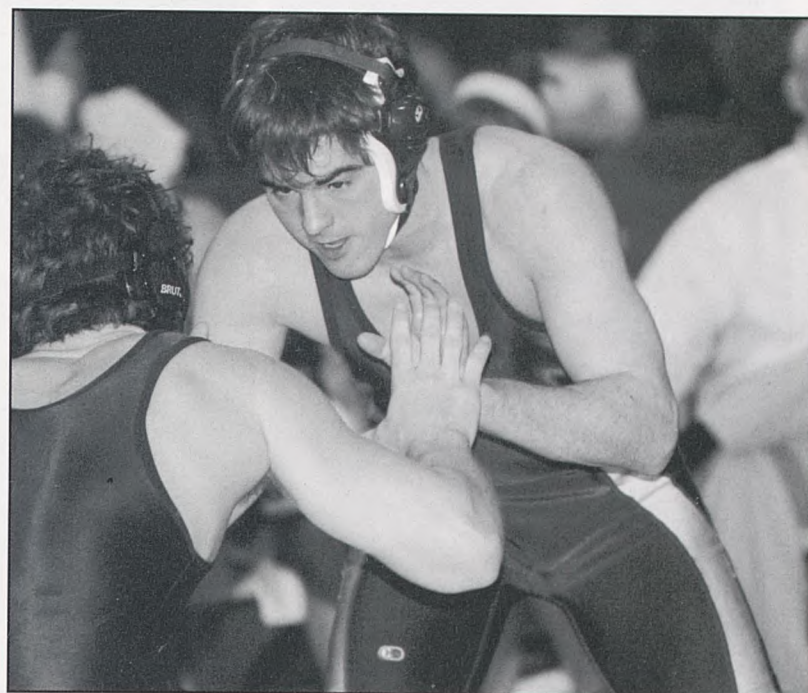

The team traveled to McKenzie Arena at the University of Tennessee, Chattanooga for the state individual tournament. MBA placed all fourteen wrestlers. This accomplishment is a state record. The team will forever be remembered for that feat. Each wrestler fought hard to bring home their individual hardware, including two champions. Placers were: Jeff Fracis 1st at 103, Elliott Sutter 4th at 112, John Michael Simpson 1st at 119, Luke Bellet 6th at 125, Mike Herron 6th at 130, Wes McKeithan 5th at 135, Ben Bellet 3rd at 140, Justin Hall 5th at 145, Christian Waddey 5th at 152, Andy Snyder 2nd at 160, captain Brooks Tate 3rd at 171, Nicholas Jacques 4th at 189, Michael Swett 5th at 215, and captain Allen Riley 5th at 275. MBA placed an overall 3rd, 2½ points behind runner-up McCallie and champions Baylor.

The team would like to thank the fans, the faculty and staff of MBA, the parents, the volunteers who helped out with the team, and most importantly the coaches for what was a tremendous season. Several wrestlers were awarded positions on the All Midstate Dream Team and Second Team and Brooks Tate won the G.P. West award. The team's success even earned Head Coach Frank Simpson Coach of the Year honors. Roll Red Roll!

Big Red Baseball had a successful 2006 season, finishing with a 26-13 record and as the Division II Middle Regional runner-up. The season opened with 3 wins against non-region opponents, and the Spring Break trip to Phoenix included tough losses and big wins, as the team went 2-3 in the Eagle Invitational. The team followed spring break with four more wins against non-region opponents, displaying one impressive offensive performance after another. After opening the region play against Brentwood Academy with a 10-0 run-rule victory, the Big Red suffered its first in-state loss, 7-4 at BA. In the rubber game of the series, the Big Red used a 6-run 6th inning to take the 8-4 win and the series.

With May came the most exciting series of the year, and the MBA-Father Ryan match up would prove to be more than a three-game affair. Nick Power drove in the game winning run in the bottom of the 9th inning to give MBA the 4-3 victory. Two days later, Jon Eisen and Frank Adelman turned a remarkable double play to hold off the Irish rally, another 4-3 victory for the Big Red. The regular season ended sourly for MBA, however, as Father Ryan came back from a 6-0 first inning deficit to win 10-9.

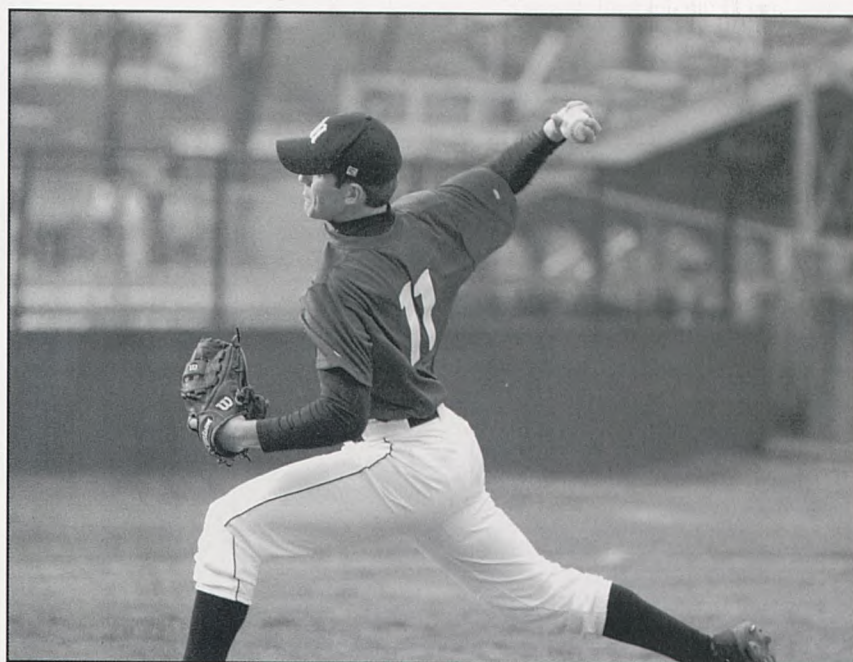

After dispatching USN 11-0 in the first round of the region tournament, MBA faced the Fighting Irish for the fourth time this season. In yet another 1-run game, the Big Red pulled out the win thanks to Andrew Harris' game winning RBI single in the bottom of the 8th inning. The next round of the tournament, however, saw MBA fall flat, as they managed just 3 hits in a 5-0 loss to BGA. In the loser's bracket, the Big Red bested the Fighting Irish, as Scott Schwartz pitched all but one out for the 4-3 win. However, BGA's four runs in the 4th inning of the Region Championship game left the Big Red as the Regional Runner-up.

The State Tournament began with a loss to the nationally ranked Christian Brothers, setting MBA against Father Ryan. In the sixth and final meeting between the rivals MBA ran away with a 12-7 win to earn another shot at Christian Brothers who had just lost to Baylor. The Big Red entered the game with confidence and energy, as they proceeded to play their most hard-fought game of the year. MBA suffered a 10-9 loss but did not go down easily against the nationally ranked opponent, with feats including a three-run double by Brooks Tate. An exhilarating game for the fans and players, the Big Red left it all on the field to end the year. Thanks to Coaches Wims, Anderson, and Martin for all their hard work.

Under new the coaching of John Harvey, the 2006 MBA Lacrosse Team assembled in late February with the shared goal of winning the State Championship. After a few months of training, the players were selected and the roster was finalized. Six seniors led the team: James Banker, Terrell McWhirter; and Luke Brown were to defend Carver Morgan's goal as the attack of Jim Witherspoon, Chris Cahill, and Sloan Sanders deployed their offensive threat. The team first traveled to Cincinnati for a tournament at St. Xavier School, where they beat the St. X hosts as well as Moeller. Back from the road, the Big Red had three easy games against Father Ryan, Webb Bell-Buckle, and Farragut, in which they outscored their opponents 58 to 11. After those victories it was time for the annual Spring Break trip, which was in Atlanta this year. First up was the Lassiter Trojans, a competitive team that always seemed to give the Big Red trouble. MBA defeated the Trojans handily 10 to 3. Next came Lovett, whose offense was too powerful for the Big Red and won 7 to 5. The next day MBA beat Trinity High School from Kentucky 7 to 6, to end the Spring Break trip on a better note.

After the end of Spring Break, the team beat Christian Brothers in a home match. For the team's next trip they were headed to Memphis to face MUS and Islip, a team from New York. As long time rivals, the Owls put up a strong fight, and even though the Big Red did not play their best, they were able to win 9 to 8. Tired and worn out, they then faced Islip, but could not keep it together for the whole four quarters. The Islip team ended up beating MBA 10 to 11.

Before one of their biggest games of the season, the Big Red faced Bell Buckle again for a 17 to 3 victory. Next came Ravenwood. The Raptors had a strong junior class that had given MBA trouble since seventh grade. They were moved into Division I for the 2006 season, and had high hopes of beating MBA. The teams first met at Ravenwood. Unable to keep possession and pick up ground balls, the Big Red fell to rather strong Raptor play 6 to 7. Ravenwood had accomplished their season goal of beating MBA, but the Big Red still had their eyes set on the State Championship.

On the new field turf, the Big Red stomped St. Xavier from Kentucky and USN, outscoring the opponents 34 to 8. MBA faced MUS next, and the Owls were seeking revenge. Due to the intensity of fourth quarter play, the Big Red was able to come back from 4-8 to make it a close game. But the Owls were able to keep it together, and overcame with a 10 to 8 victory. The next week MBA faced their rivals of McCallie. But with intensity and teamwork, MBA defeated the Blue Tornado 15 to 8.

In the first round of the playoffs, MBA beat Father Ryan 16 to 3. In the semifinals, MBA avenged the earlier loss to Ravenwood, beating them 15 to 7, earning an invitation to the State Championship. The finals were played at MBA against McCallie on May 13. McCallie had defeated MUS in their semifinals game the night before. Explosive offensive action on MBA's part added to their outstanding play. The close defense protected the net with the help of strong defensive middle play. In the end, MBA came out on top 9 to 7. Carver Morgan was named Defensive Player of the Game, and Jim Witherspoon won the Offensive Player of the Game. For the first time in thirteen years, MBA had won a state championship. Six seniors will be graduated, but the team looks to be strong next year.

After losing several senior starters, the soccer team was not sure what to expect in 2006. With only four seniors on the roster it was feared that lack of leadership and experience on the team would result in a disappointing year.

However, that was not the case at all. During the winter training, Coach Lanier and Coach Cheevers made it clear that losing would not be tolerated. As a result, the team developed a relentless determination for winning and enjoyed playing the underdog role all year.

The addition of Cheevers to the coaching staff worked out wonderfully. Before moving to the states and coaching the Big Red, Cheevers spent years as a coach in the Irish professional leagues. His fire and passion for winning blended well with Coach Lanier's brilliant strategy and insight of the game to create one of the best coaching staffs in the state.

A bench full of role players made up the 2006 squad. Leadership was provided by seniors Joseph Alexander, Eric Beiter, Jordan Dockery, and Jordan Keckley. The defense was anchored by Dockery, Clayton Foster, Greg Harbison, and Weston Cowden. Both goalies Alexander and Trey McMinn were tremendous. In the midfield, Zach Richardson and Houston Oldham controlled the middle while Beiter and Tyler Yarbrough commanded the wings. Up top, Keckley and Alexander Darsinos did the scoring for the Big Red.

High points in the season included a 5-0 victory over Hendersonville and a last-minute goal by Brandon Harrington to defeat BGA 2-1. An inspiring halftime led to spirited play and a victory over five-time Alabama state champion Grissom.

MBA's season came to an end at the hands of Christian Brothers. Entering as huge underdogs against a nationally ranked team, the Big Red defenders refused to give Christian Brothers a clear shot and Alexander made several tremendous blocks to force a scoreless game to penalty kicks. Sadly, Christian Brothers prevailed, winning 7-6 on penalty kicks. Nevertheless, the game showed how far the team had come, as each player demonstrated courage through his play. The game, season, and team of 2006 will not soon be forgotten.

The 2005-2006 season proved successful for MBA Ultimate Frisbee, as once again Los Banditos dominated the competition in Tennessee on its way to a birth in the state championship. After suffering through the frigid weather of the winter and through Coach Russ's endless drilling, the chemistry between players meshed and the elite skill level of the team was able to challenge even the most successful high school programs. This merciless training regimen of repetitive and fatiguing practices mixed with intrasquad scrimmages sharpened the key abilities of proficiency handling the disk and an understanding of defensive and offensive strategies.

The Big Red racked up numerous wins early in the season over teams such as Hume-Fogg and Hillsboro and gained confidence quickly with these easy blowout victories. For most of the season no one was up to the challenge of knocking off the talented and hallowed "Top 7" of Montgomery Bell. At a collegiate tournament located at Talladega Speedway, however, Los Banditos was humbled and finished with a respectable yet disappointing 3-4 record, losing to powerhouses such as Paidea (whom MBA has yet to defeat) and the University of Dayton. Highlights of the tournaments came in triumphs over Auburn University and West Georgia, but in the end collegiate athletes overcame MBA's high-school talent.

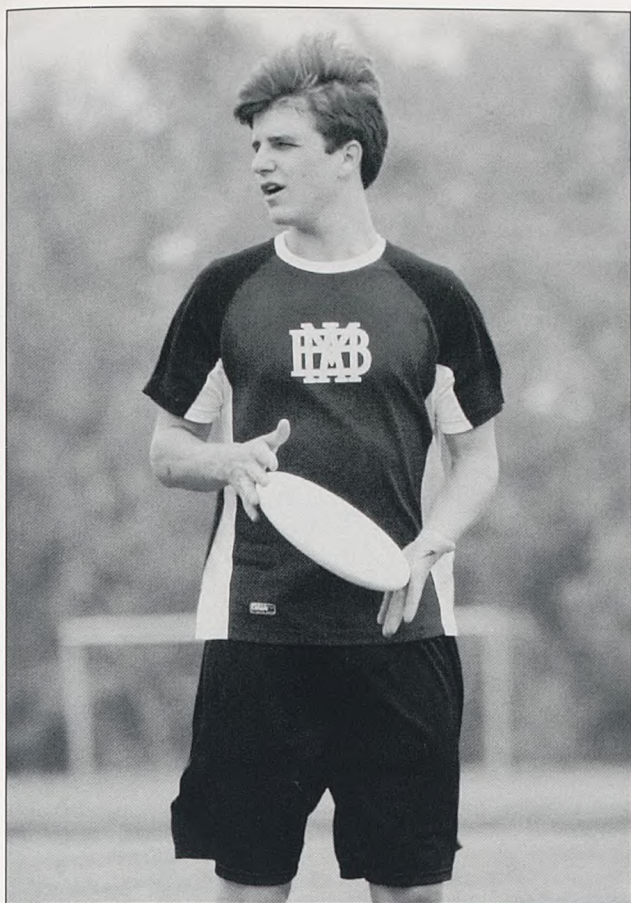

Poised to prove itself once again, the team entered the state tournament focused and resolute, determined to bring the glory of a state title to 4001 Harding Road. After crushing the competition with an undefeated run in pool play (extinguishing the hopes of McCallie, Indian Springs, and the USN girls) to earn the top seed on day one, expectations were raised to nothing less than the first-place trophy. Day two began in rainy and windy conditions, yet MBA easily defeated Hume-Fogg by a comfortable 13-2 margin in the quarterfinals. Franklin provided a much more difficult test in the semifinal round, but a backbreaking full field bomb from Wynne Barton to David Reynolds for a touchdown was pivotal in the Big Red's 13-8 victory. The winning streak came to an end in the finals against the spirited USN boys' team when uncharacteristic drops and a frustrating zone defense neutralized the offense and forced the team into an early deficit out of which they could never climb. Following the aggravating 15-13 loss, captain Wynne Barton said it best: "There's no way we should have lost that game."

Contributors to this year's team were mostly made up of an extremely talented and athletic group of seniors. The leader and best player was captain and handler Wynne Barton, and the rest of the top seven included fellow handler Matt "Goofy" Smith, the midrange to deep threats Kevin Seitz and David "Peepers" Reynolds, and the quick and athletic Tyler "Dippo" Moore, Drew "Drewski" Andrews, and Ben "Speedy" Crownover. Others, such as Buck "Rage" Curley, Jordan "Squiggs" Dockery, Jeffery "Machine" Zagar, and David "Purple Drink" Buttrey also answered the warlike call of "Ultimate" and performed superbly off the bench.

Special thanks are extended to Coaches Roderick Russ and Robert Sawyer for dealing with the elements in order to coach Los Banditos to yet another successful and entertaining season. In the words of Coach Russ himself, "Ultimate is fun."

The varsity tennis team had another successful year, finishing 11-3, with no losses to any middle Tennessee team. The team repeated as region champions for the 7th straight year, and advanced to the state semi-finals only to fall to eventual state champion McCallie. Despite being a very young team with only Adam Baker and Nick Anand having previous varsity experience, the team improved steadily throughout the year. Nick Anand, team captain, provided valuable leadership as the lone senior on the team. Individually, Adam Baker (11) won the region championship and advanced to the state semi-finals in singles. Roger Briggs qualified as an 8th Grader for the state tournament after placing 3rd in the region, proceeding all the way to the quarterfinals. Nick Anand (12) and Eli Gay (11) advanced to the state doubles quarterfinals before losing a three-set battle to the eventual state runner-up doubles team from MUS. Adam Speyer (11) and Richard Brunsting (9) also reached the state quarterfinals before falling in a close match to the eventual state champs from McCallie. The team looks to build on its state semi-final berth and move toward a state championship in the years to come. With such a young team and a strong Microbe program, the future is bright for Big Red tennis. To the coaches Mark Sutton and Zac Hood, thank you for all of your work and teaching. The team appreciates all of the support from faculty and parents throughout the year.

The 2006 MBA Varsity Track team began their season with a third-place finish behind McCallie and Brentwood Academy at the Midsouth Classic in Chatanooga. With the true contenders for the State Championship revealed, MBA became focused on surpassing these schools. On their journey to the state meet, MBA won the Highland Games at Franklin Road Academy, where Michael Swett, the new MBA record holder in the discus, was crowned "Big Man of the Year" for his performances in the shot and discus. After surviving a tough grind of workouts, the MBA track team, fueled by the dominance of their field athletes and even more by the support of their coaches, captured the City Championship. The Freshmen track team also was victorious in the Freshmen City Championship and looks to be filled with rising stars.

At the Region Championship, Rich Tompkins' high hurdle victory set not only the region record but also the tone for what would be the track team's finest night. Although Brentwood Academy barely edged out the Big Red, many athletes set personal bests, and seniors Will Hackett and Andy Snyder carried the 4x400 relay team to a region championship. At the state meet, MBA saw three individuals win state, for the first time in 4 years; Michael Swett won state in the discus, Rich Tompkins in 110 meter hurdles, and Christian Waddey in the pole vault. Although MBA finished third at state behind McCallie and Brentwood Academy, the Big Red Track Team improved tremendously over the course of the season. Because of dedicated coaches and determined athletes, the 2006 track season was successful and memorable for all those involved.

Archives

Archives, the literary and art magazine of AMBA, has been in continuous publication since 1982. Before that time, creative writing was recognized by occasional publication of collections under such names as The Blue Planet, which included some works by alumni. The concept of an entirely student-generated magazine did not take hold until 1985. The same year, Dr. Wayne Batten introduced the strategy of producing two issues each year, with the fall issue representing all contributors and the spring issue reflecting only the best of new submissions. With the introduction of color reproduction a few years later, Archives made the full transition to a glossy, permanent organ for creative writing and art at MBA. Archives has won first-place awards from the American Scholastic Press Association, including a "first place with special merit" award for the spring, 2001 issue. In addition, student art reproduced in Archives has twice won the "best in the nation" award. Alumni editors of Archives have entered careers in publishing, art, architecture, and design. One Archives editor from 1989, Mr. Jeff Joe, recently helped to create the hit movie Madagascar. With new possibilities using digital technology, Archives will continue to provide a vital component of MBA's creative community. Other former editors have gone on to become editors of similar publications in college. A recent MBA graduate and Archives alumnus is currently chief editor of Oxford University's literary magazine.

Creative Writing

In its third year, the MBA Writers Group meets twice monthly for hour-long workshops in Mr. Moxley's room where the students write poems and read aloud their work in an open workshop. The students work on discovering topics and the processes writers use to start, develop, and revise their poems. By creating a community of writers, the MBA Writers Group hopes to encourage young students to take pride in their writing talents and nurture their love of the written word.

The MBA Book Club, or Club de Libros, is largely an underground organization, its meetings private and its dialogues confidential. Our gatherings, in undisclosed locations, have the urgent secrecy of the French resistance, yet the affable insouciance of a treehouse gang. The club discusses contemporary novels and, generally, life — raw and aestheticized.

Cum Laude

This spring, MBA's Cum Laude chapter, chartered in 1980, inducted 16 students and one faculty member into its ranks. The new members have consistently displayed superior academic achievement during their time at MBA. Academic Dean and government teacher Alan Coverstone spoke to the audience of students, parents, and faculty. He discussed MBA as a "community of learners" adding that "never a day goes by that I do not realize and cherish the incredible opportunity I have to be at this school."

National Merit Scholarship Semi-Finalists

MBA is proud to announce that twelve members of the senior class were named semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Competition. With twice as many semifinalists as any other Nashville area school, MBA continues its tradition of preparing Gentlemen, Scholars, and Athletes by providing a classical education for the twenty-first century. The following seniors were named semi-finalists:

Eric Beiter	William Schuller
Pete Burgess	Kevin Seitz
David Downing	David Syverud
Edward Ebbert	David Wheeler
Nicholas Jacques	Mitchell Williams
Jordan Klein

King Society

The King Society, MBA's community service honorary fraternity named after American civil rights activist, Martin Luther King, Jr., sponsored a "Life of Pi" dance in September that raised nine-hundred dollars. Profits from the dance were split between the American Red Cross for Hurricane Katrina relief efforts as well as to the Mphondweni School in South Africa. On January 24, 2006, eight new members from the junior and senior classes were inducted at an assembly program where Vanderbilt Vice-Chancellor David Williams was guest speaker.

Season Recap:

Regional Competition @ Chattanooga State

On Saturday, 25 February 2006, a well-oiled although patchwork Science Olympiad team invaded Chattanooga for our regional competition. In Division B we took home medals in 15 of 20 events including 7 gold medals, placed second in the region and qualified for the third year in a row for state. In the HS Division C we claimed medals in 14 of 16 events, had 8 golds, placed first in the region (ahead of McCallie) and return to the state competition at UT Knoxville to hopefully improve upon last year's State Runner-Up trophy.

State Championships @ UT Knoxville

On Saturday, 01 April 2006, the Junior and High School Science Olympiad teams traveled to Knoxville for this year's state tournament. After a day of chemistry labs, bottle rockets, robots, geology, and catapults (to name a few of the 23 competitions) the Big Red teams came home with outstanding results - three State championships, five second and six third place medals, as well as several other top five finishes.

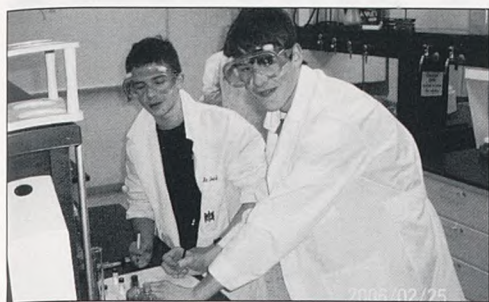

The Division C team came home with the third place team trophy over nine other teams across the state including McCallie, Harpeth Hall, John Paul II, and MLK. Dr. Dickens, coach of the high school team, was awarded a plaque for his efforts in leading the team to another top three finish, the third in three years of competition. The Division B team kept up the pressure by turning in its strongest showing ever by placing 5th.

History Club

The Montgomery Bell Academy History Club was established by the History Department in September 2005, as an extracurricular program designed to foster life-long interest in the study of history among faculty and students. In its first year, the club included 19 student and three faculty members. The club was led by a steering group consisting of Chairman Adam Baker, student representatives Nicholas Marzialo and Stephan Stroop with faculty advisors, Dr. Clay Bailey, Mr. Samuel Lester and LtCol Joseph Sharbel. During its inaugural year the club organized and participated in a variety of events including a guided Halloween Tour of Old Nashville Cemetery; a tour of the Hudson River School Exhibit at the Frist Museum; a staff ride to selected Nashville Civil War sites; a visit to Mansker Station (a 1779 middle-Tennessee frontier settlement); and Sunday afternoon viewings of historical movies at Pfeffer Auditorium.

African American Studies

The African-American Studies Club was conceived at the end of the 2005 school year and began in earnest this year. The club started because, other than weekly black history assemblies in February, a week studying the Harlem Renaissance in English II, and a broad study of African-American culture in the American History book, the MBA student throughout his career lacks a strong base in African-American History. One might ask, why is it important to study African-American History? As we participate in service opportunities at MBA such as the Preston Taylor Homes and Soup Kitchen--two service activities in which African-Americans are the leading number of service recipients--learning the background of these people we gratefully serve helps us become better gentleman. This club also supports students who have a natural curiosity about African-American History and the key role it plays in our rich and diverse American culture. The African-American Club supports these needs by having meetings once a month. We currently have around 14 members with Mr. David Whitfield serving as our sponsor.

--Rasha' Harvey '08

Mission Statement: To promote the education and awareness of African-American culture on the MBA campus. The medium through this will be achieved includes portrayals of African-American life and images through film, art, literature, historical readings and music. This club will seek sponsorship from the MBA faculty as well as scholars in the Nashville community.

"Now is the accepted time, not tomorrow, not some more convenient season. It is today that our best work can be done and not some future day or future year. It is today that we fit ourselves for the greater usefulness of tomorrow. Today is the seed time, now are the hours of work, and tomorrow comes the harvest and the playtime."

Model UN

Model Aviators

The Model Airplane Club was founded by Russell Mack last year with the help of Gena Kaboulov and Jason Wallace. These boys decided to share their unique hobby with the younger boys of Montgomery Bell by holding flying events during the summer to teach interested students how to fly model airplanes and helicopters. Russell Mack made a deal with the local hobby retailer Hobby-Lobby Inc. in which they supplied a free trainer plane to the club in order to promote interest in model aviation.

Medical Careers

In its second year, the Medical Careers Club continued its exploration of various medical fields. This year's speakers had experiences ranging from wilderness medicine to tropical medicine to sports medicine. The Vanderbilt Children's Hospital was selected to be the recipient of the club's service. The club's highlight event of the year was a PlayStation 2 Madden Football Tournament. The money raised went to the hospital to purchase PS2s.

Foreign Media Club

The Foreign Media Club was established in 2005 as a way for students interested in foreign languages to experience other cultures through film and music. The club meets every Wednesday during break to watch and discuss films from countries such as France, Japan, Italy, and Africa.

Wall Ball Club

This year The Wall Club raised enough money through exhibitions on Good Morning America, The Today Show, Jay Leno, David Letterman, and the Opray Winfrey Show to visit the Great Wall of China where we played in the World Wall Ball Cup. Though we failed to make the medal round, this year was a breakout experience for the Wall Ball program.

In September, MBA and Harpeth Hall celebrated their eighth collaborative musical and returned to the rockin' rhythm of the eighties. When a hip teenage boy named Ren McCormack (Scott Schwartz) moved from the city to the country, he expected some culture shock but also discovers a ban on dancing. The rebellious preacher's daughter Ariel (Stephanie Rothenberg) tries to befriend the new kid, but both are misunderstood in a town where rumors become truths and reputations are ruined without proof. As he loses touch with his daughter, Reverend Moore (Pete Long-Innes) demands more strict enforcement of the laws and an unavoidable showdown with Ren. Director Janette Fox Klocko compared the show's theme to the theatrical process: "Theater itself is a communication art, and part of what we learn in every theatrical endeavor is that 'practicing what we preach' needs to happen in all kinds of human interaction. When we DO listen . . . whole new worlds open up to us!" She praised her colleagues, cast and crew for their hard work as an ensemble "to open up the world of Footloose" to the audiences from MBA and Harpeth Hall.

The Importance of Being Earnest

In December, the MBA Players presented Oscar Wilde's theatrical gem, The Importance of Being Earnest. When a gentleman named John Worthing decided to introduce himself as "Earnest" while in London, he had no idea how much this little "lie" would complicate and change his life. With great performances by seniors Nelson Berry (as Earnest) and William Schuller (as Lane) and juniors Chase Altenbern (as Algernon) and Everitte Barbee (as Reverend Chasuable), this comedy with its spinning set inspired by surrealist painter Rene Magritte left audience members laughing at the absurdities of life. Director Cal Fuller says of Wilde's witty classic: "We relish being made to think by playing games and deciphering codes. I have also set Earnest in the 1960s, imagining him more contemporary in order to feature absurdities we may still inhabit." Fuller especially praised his designers, actors, and crews for sharing their creativity and hard work on the project: "We've had great fun and hope it's contagious."

Nelson and Chase are earnest about being important.

William Schuller looking smug, glib, and vainglorious while stroking his favorite mink stole.

The Government Inspector

Gogol would be proud.

Matthew Behar being dramatic

Behar wanted Tommy's part.

The once and future mayor: Tommy Corts

In February, Mr. Malcolm Morrison directed The Government Inspector by Nikolai Gogol. This classic satire on human vanity tells the story of a penniless nobody from Moscow, played beautifully by Matthew Behar ('06), who is mistaken for a government inspector by the corrupt and self-seeking officials of a small town in Tsarist Russia. Morrison said of his production of Gogol's masterpiece: "I have been most fortunate to be able to work with a wonderfully talented comedic cast who has taken to the ghastly characters with relish, humor, and sheer artistry. The commitment and dedication from everyone in the play, from technician to musician to actor, and the sense of support, professionalism and preparedness of all involved has been exemplary."

Everitte enjoys the connections he makes through theater..

At the end of April, the students in Dr. Cal Fuller's Studio Theater class produced the 2006 One-Act plays as the culmination of a year of study and practice. This year, these dramas focused on the season's theme of mistaken identity, and the evening was entitled "Identity Thieves." The short plays were directed by seniors William Schuller, Eric Hagemeyer, Matthew Behar, Maclean Grindell, Davey Douglas, and Andy Snyder. They featured especially strong performances by seniors James Schuller, Clayton Lainhart, and Chase Cato. Dr. Fuller said of his graduating seniors, "I am particularly proud of this group for their challenging choices and for their continued conscientiousness this late in the year! It has been an honor to teach and to direct these young men. Mr. Morrison, Dr. Seay, and I appreciate their dedication to theater and will miss them. They have had more opportunities and accolades than any other class before them. As they graduate, I hope they take with them pleasant memories of what they have learned and created together while here at MBA."

In the wake of a national championship season, this year's policy debate team had big shoes to fill. Charged with the task of maintaining the team's substantial national prowess (and with only a single senior to help), the squad rose to the occasion, establishing one of the most successful years in MBA's illustrious history and proving that the season was not one for "rebuilding." With senior Parkes Brittain and juniors Harrison Brown, Jamie Berk, and Kyle Davis to lead the way, the team emerged victorious in highly prestigious tournaments at the University of Michigan, Samford, and Vestavia Hills High. Other notable success nationally included a 2nd place finish at Wake Forest, 2nd at Miami (OH), 3rd at Emory's Barkley Forum, and 5th at Kentucky's Ohio Valley Invitational. In addition, members of the team consistently placed among the top individual speakers country-wide. The team seeks to follow up an incredible regular season this summer with titles at the national championship tournaments in Dallas and Lexington, KY. The sophomore class contributed to the above successes through an outstanding work ethic and impressive showings in the junior varsity division. The freshmen added even more and gave a preview of years to come with exemplary triumphs of their own. In Lincoln-Douglas debate, Corey Metzman supplemented the team's efforts by establishing himself as one of the most competitive sophomores nation-wide, earning top speaker recognition and 3rd place overall at the 2nd Year National Championship in Atlanta. John Moynihan also reached the final rounds of extemporaneous speaking at numerous highly-regarded tournaments. With a young team already producing staggering results, the future of MBA Debate has never been so bright.

Mason, Harrison, and Jamie debate where to go to lunch.

The Metz-Man

Kyle and Mr. Coverstone argue whether debate is an agitation, altercation, argumentation, bull yard, contention, deliberation, dialectic, disputation, polemic, powwow, rap session, tiff, or wrangle.

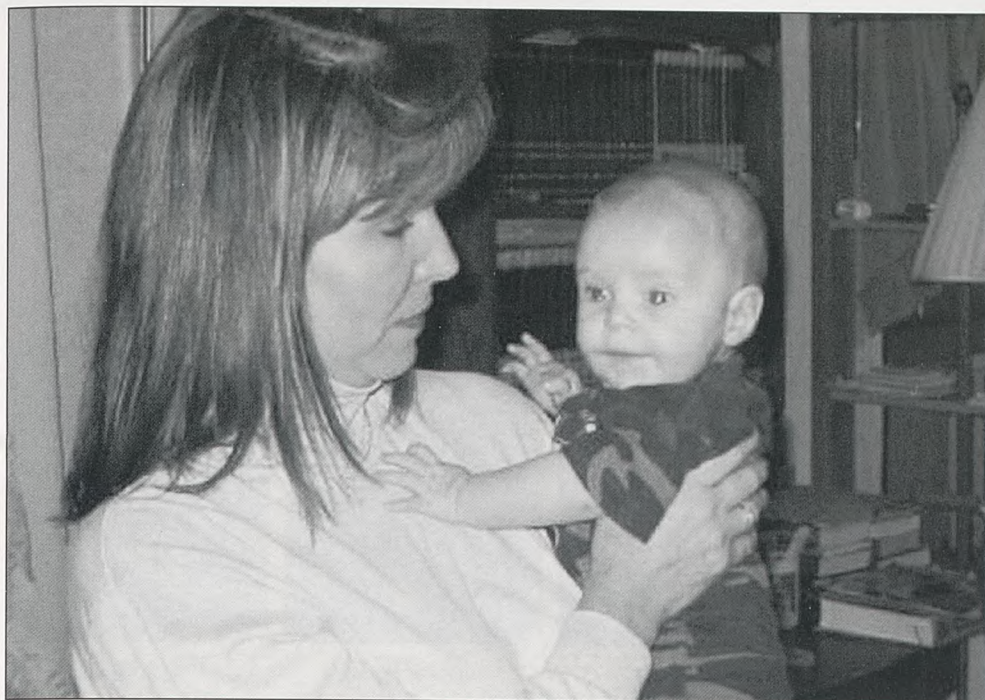

The Junior School

Junior School Dedication

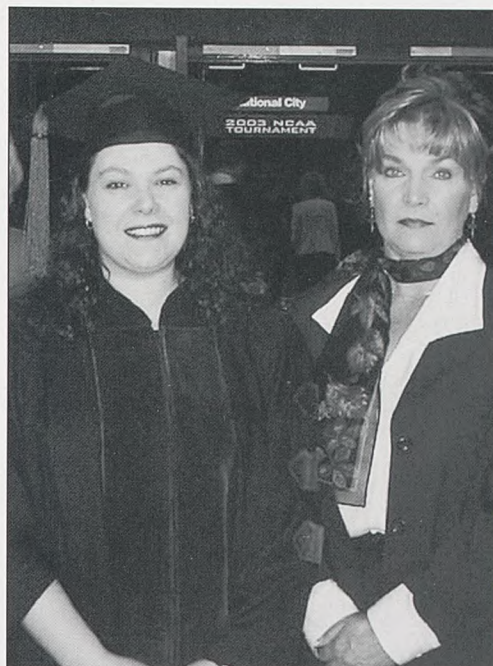

Mrs. Nita Snow

It is a tradition at MBA that the 8th grade vote on the year book dedication recipient. This year's recipient has been at MBA for 7 years now. She is the heart and soul of the Junior School. She is the lady whom we all stand up for when she enters the room, who answers the phone, takes your pink sheet, takes care of you when you are sick, takes your backpack and puts it in Mr. Thurmond's office when you carelessly throw it down in the middle of the hall during lunch, and she is the one who makes the Junior School run the way it does so smoothly. She is well-deserving of this honor because her day never stops from the time she enters the door in the morning to the time that she leaves in the afternoon. She works hand in hand with Mr. Thurmond to verify event times and put events together for the students. On behalf of the class of 2010, I would like to announce Mrs. Nita Snow as this year's well-deserving year book dedication recipient.

On March 31, April 1 and 2, the school's theater department entered into uncharted territory with the first-ever Junior School musical. Under the direction of Dr. Rick Seay, the production of Tom Sawyer was a tremendous success, featuring stellar debut performances by MBA faculty members Carole Pettus ("Aunt Polly") and Catherine Hollifield ("Widder Douglas"). The entire cast was strong, and this new theatrical event offers a showcase for MBA's up-and-coming theatrical talent. In three performances, over 700 people saw the show, proving that the show filled a unique niche in the activities of MBA.

Commencement

On a cool early June evening, the Class of 2006 graduated in fine form, with Mr. Gioia introducing the program that included a rousing salutory by Kevin Seitz, a witty valedictory by John Lee, and a wonderfully unique commencement speech by Dr. Kent Syverud, a talk composed exclusively of single-syllable words, except for the word "syllable" itself. Proving that "brevity is the soul of wit," Dr. Syverud's speech dispatched the Senior Class to join the real world with a smile on their faces and nostalgia in their hearts.

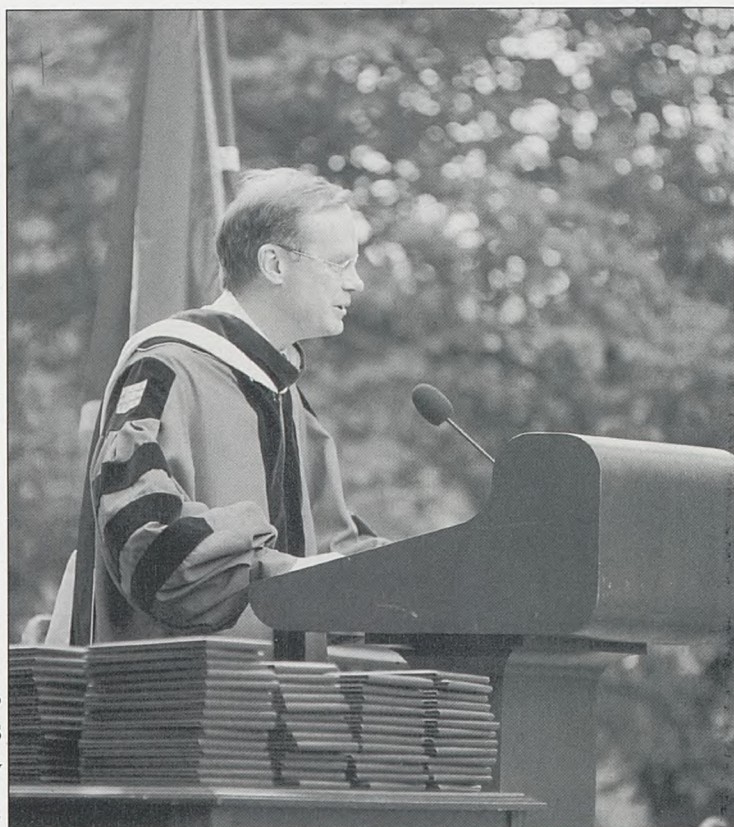

Mr. Gaither, Mr. Compton and the Old Guard usher in the vanguard.

Congratulations to the MBA Players, Winners of the Edinburgh Fringe Festival for 2005

In August, 21 members of the MBA Theater Program participated in the international Edinburgh Fringe Festival. Earlier in 2005, the theater program was recognized by the American High School Theater Festival as one of the best theater programs in the nation. As a result of this achievement, MBA was one of 50 high schools in the United States invited to perform at the renowned festival in Scotland. MBA's production of William Faulkner's As I Lay Dying was honored with a rave review in Three Weeks Magazine: "Both visually stunning and musically sound, I could not believe this was the work of young students. A polished and professional effort, a definite must see." The reviewer gave the show the highest possible rating (5 out of 5).

The cast of As I Lay Dying gathers at the foot of Arthur's Seat on the Univ. of Edinburgh campus.

Alex Martin, Maclean Grindell, and Jim Flanagan respond to the news of their "rave review" in the Scotland press (5 stars--highest rating!)

Maclean Grindell preaches to the converted (Clayton Lainhart, William Schuller, Jim Flanagan, and Jeff Eberle) in Scotland.

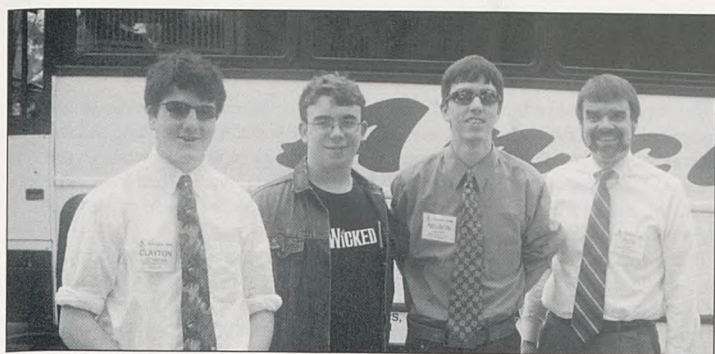

The Bundren cast delivers Addie's coffin (and a great performance) in Edinburgh.

The cast of As I Lay Dying perform on the Royal Mile at the Edinburgh International Theater Festival.

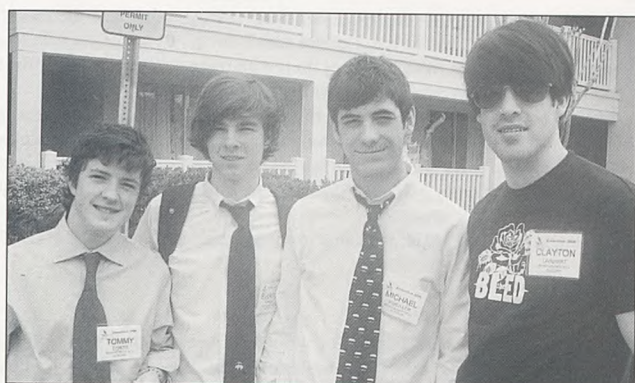

One-Act Play Competition

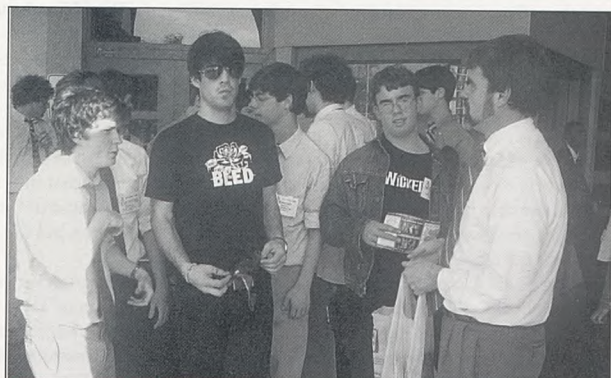

Clayton, Nicholas, Nelson, and Dr. Seay display their nametags proudly.

Oh, What a Lovely Cast!

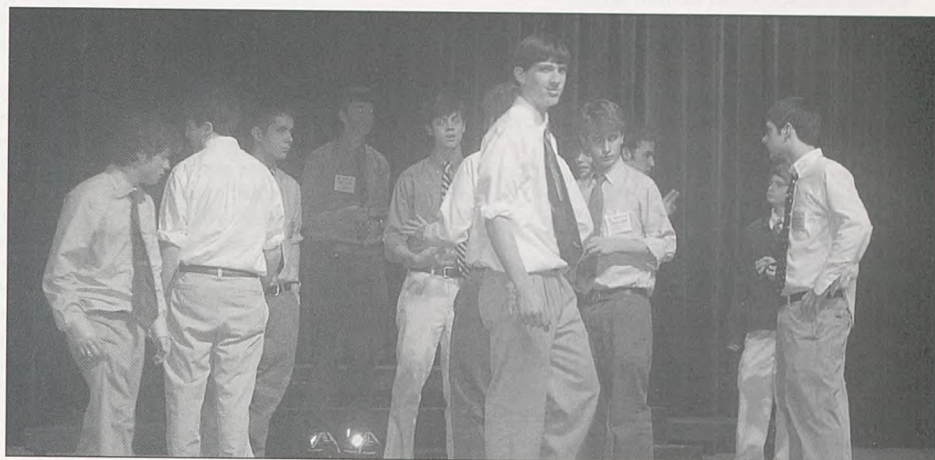

Tommy, Everitte, Michael, and Clayton prepare to go on stage.

Backstage everyone gets pumped for the performance.

After capturing first place honors in the state at the Tennessee Theater Association's High School One-Act Theatre competition in October, MBA's production of Oh, What a Lovely War!, headed off to Orlando, Florida, in early March, to represent the state at the Southeastern Theater Conference's annual convention. The musical, using British music hall entertainments, created a witty yet poignant piece on the nature of World War I. Although the cast did not win the SETC title, the students involved did an amazing job and represented the talents of the school very well. Nelson Berry was named to the All-Star Cast list again this year. The troupe extended MBA's reputation as a top-notch fine-arts school even further and helped make our exemplary program known throughout the country.

Above: The MBA Players set up for the big production.

The Salutatorian's Address, delivered June 1, 2006, by Kevin Seitz:

Good evening. As we begin tonight, I'd first like to welcome our board Chairman Webb, headmaster, and the Board of Trust, our teachers, faculty, staff, and the entire administration of MBA. I would also like to greet the parents, families, friends, and guests who have gathered with us tonight amid these bricks, trees, grass, and roofs we have been fortunate to call home for the past six years. It is my honor and my privilege to welcome you to the 2006 Commencement ceremony of Montgomery Bell Academy.

Here, now, at this graduation, we have come to celebrate a moment and a transition in our lives as young men of this senior class, seated here, brimming with all the tremendous pride and potential that this school instills in its graduates. Each of us will complete his duties by crossing this stage, shaking hands, and finally grasping those little red books. I've seen it done many times now, and I'm fairly certain I have it down. But, by those short and practiced motions, we will not only lay down the heavy back cover of this thick text we call a high school education, but also, and more importantly, we have a moment to realize that tonight we celebrate an assembling of six years. The countless moments, fragments, chapters, and episodes of our lives have culminated here into who we are at this brief moment and perhaps thereby dissolve entirely that metaphor of a book to be opened and forever closed.

Standing before you, I want so badly to give you something tangible with my words, as a testament to what six years on this hill truly means. But I cannot speak so that you might know how soft these brick paths feel after the miles we have walked on them. I cannot enunciate so that you might experience what this air truly smells like on a Tuesday morning in October. I cannot read from a sheet of paper so that you might sense but a fraction of the exhaustion, fear, adrenaline and hope that we have felt here.

We have reached the pinnacle of our MBA academic lives. We can explain life itself with biology, biology with chemistry, chemistry with physics, and physics with numbers to define the nanometers of uncertainty in matter itself, to define exactly how much we cannot know. Our words have been well-trained, and can argue either side of any debate, and we can justify ourselves accordingly. We can wield rhetoric with deft counter-arguments, and only the occasional comma-splice.

Over the course of these years, we have found examples of the greater morals, principles, and realities of the world. We have discussed them in classrooms, and we have typed them on pages. When prompted, we can proficiently describe clouds of intangibles like "existence", "heroism" and "maturity".

And ultimately, we have discovered that the greatest achievement of a scholar is not to rest with merely assigning the close-fit answers, but to understand the true questions, and then pose some of our own. But tonight poses questions that seemingly must be answered. Those of the past, present, and future that converge here so powerfully. When we first arrived on this campus, every one of us knew that this school stood for its challenge. That this place was founded on traditions of dedication and excellence. And since then our every thought, sprint, dive, joke, mistake and success has been in an effort to follow that nameless drive that lives in the very spirit of this hill. We have been seeking to build a something here, something as a validation and as a proof that would give ourselves and our efforts a sense of definition and of importance.

But we did not know the form of this, our goal, this purpose we pored over after midnights, pounded with crashing helmets, and called out for beneath the blinding theatre lights. But it was only by stepping into the places that grabbed us in fear that we have come to know our own skin, and sometimes it takes saying the thing aloud to see if one truly believes his own words. Our spirits are content only at the thresholds of what we might create, and what we might become.

This competitive spirit defines MBA, and when we faced adversity, it drove us to better, farther and faster, and we embraced it to the fullest. As these columns can bear witness, we invented countless lighthearted games and contests every day in this quadrangle, most of which were subsequently lost to authority-veto. But those too, were battles we were willing to fight to the teeth.

Over six years that spirit built so many things I cannot show you tonight. I cannot lay my hands on the silent foundations, the invisible roots, and the unspoken bonds that have grown between us as a class. When an assembly announcement sparks that warm murmur, and an then roar of laughter bursts from the senior section that baffles the entire theatre, there, there better than anywhere else, you might hear it. And it courses through us tonight, seated beside the men whose faces, laughs, penmanship, and passions we know so well.

Many, many times men and women have told us, "well, that's a fine school" and we nod, but I want to tell them now that, to us, these walls are much more than an institution for learning. MBA, these buildings, and the people here tonight have become an inextricable part of who we are. It has become our home, our family, and our life. Our debt to the teachers and coaches, each other and all the difficult times we've faced here is not one we can express with mere thanks and hugs. Every moment we have met, every feeling we have felt, and every dream we have dreamt has made us who we are today.

Yes, we will leave this place tonight. Years, and even months from now, we won't know every car in that senior lot, whether they're parked in their assigned space, and where those seniors are likely to be found on campus. But time cannot take this place from our bones, for every part of the last six years will never leave us, buried deep, where our nerve-endings greet the heart.

C.S. Lewis once wrote, "An author doesn't necessarily understand the meaning of his story better than anyone else," and so too, I'm not sure I can give you the significance of this time, and these stories we have lived. I cannot do it with mere paragraphs and infinitives, split or whole. But regardless, from here, we can write only our future.

It is not where we can be content or static that our lives will find fulfillment. Six years ago, this was the unfamiliar world that we embarked upon, and it was this challenge that defined us. Now, tonight, we will set out again. We will turn our rings, our minds, and our hearts to seek the unknown and to face it; selflessly bold and without reservation, so that we might write our lives with an honest love.

Finally, thank you, and again, welcome to the graduation of the class of 2006.

The Valedictorian's Address, delivered June 1, 2006, by John Lee:

First . . . a disclaimer: Because of my obsession with France, the use of French in this speech will be charming at best, pretentious at worst.

I thought it was amusing when I first came to Montgomery Bell Academy because I met lots of guys who had wanted to go to MBA since they learned their first word. When my parents asked me if I wanted to go to MBA, I replied, surprised, "I'm terrible at basketball." When I was seven years old, I had two favorite things: candy and The Magic School Bus. Why did I like The Magic School Bus so much? Was it the United Nations class? Was it Arnold's ever-resounding lamentation, "I knew I should have stayed home today"? Or perhaps it was that I could think that science was cool without reproach or that I could simply marvel at the concept of friction without having to know that if it's static friction, the force of static friction is less than or equal to the coefficient of static friction times the normal force, or that if the object is descending an incline of 26.8°, then the force of kinetic friction equals the coefficient of kinetic friction times the mass times the force of gravity multiplied by the cosine of 26.8°—that is, if the y-component of the force is the only acting force.

Looking back on that show, I realize now how significant Ms. Frizzle's charge at the beginning of every scientific adventure was: "Take chances, make mistakes, get messy!" Ms. Frizzle had unbounded enthusiasm for every undertaking knowing that the Magic School Bus would guide her and the class to their goal. Even though Arnold incessantly wailed that he wished he had stayed home that day, didn't he always end up enjoying himself?

I am aware that many of you are thinking, "What does this guy who spends all his time at Blair playing the piano know about 'getting messy'?—hypocrite!" I must admit that I've always been a "safe" person—the good, law-abiding citizen. I've always obeyed my parents, stayed out of trouble at school, driven the speed limit, come home at a decent hour, and followed the rules—not that those things are bad. And until recently, I've rarely been willing to "go out on a limb" for something new and uncharted. But when I went to France for the first time, I had no choice but to dive in to a French family's life. There was no room for reservation or squeamishness, only total and absolute commitment. Having never been overseas before, I was forced to take a chance in full knowledge that things could go very wrong. And, believe me, I made some mistakes. My favorite "JFK-in-Berlin" moment to date occurred the first time I was in France two years ago. I was riding in the car with my host father, Thierry, and we were listening to a CD of a classical vocalist whom he knew. He mentioned that she often stopped by the house to visit and, sometimes, even to perform a short number. And I, being the eager American youth, chimed in, "Ah, je voudrais bien défricher avec elle." Thierry burst out laughing. Astonished by what could be so funny about wanting to sight-read some music with her, I asked what was the matter. Thierry explained to me that I had just said that I wanted to mow her down with a lawn mower instead of to sight-read with her.

To get through our lives with any morsel of dignity, we must be able to laugh at ourselves. Here at MBA, most everything is very serious. Classes run on a regimented schedule, students dress according to strict guidelines, and students have little leeway to choose their courses. I think some students become disgruntled with MBA because they feel stifled, but I believe that if they stopped to recognize the not-so-serious aspects of the school, they might think otherwise. We must not take our lives so seriously that we can see nothing beyond the here and now. After all, don't you just love changing the daily schedule every time we have assembly and switching Tuesday to a Monday schedule and Friday to a Tuesday schedule and Wednesday to a Friday schedule?

Taking a chance often does precipitate making mistakes and getting messy before a goal can be reached. My host mother this past summer, Sylvie, for one, started a bed and breakfast from the ground up. She bought a vast tract of land with a three-hundred-year-old farm complex on it and set out to start her own business. With the help of her eighty-year-old mother and a couple of friends, she has now transformed the dilapidated structures into a lovely country inn that is now successful. You can imagine how much work went into such an undertaking, and more than once, the whole project nearly fell through because of financial predicaments. But with persistence and by maintaining a risible perspective on her life, Sylvie made it through the mess.

Take MBA's Mrs. Carole Pettus, for example, too. Mrs. Pettus had never been in any play until her recent role as Aunt Polly in the Junior School's production of Tom Sawyer. It may not appear that such a move should be very risky since she's taught the novel many times, but let me convince you otherwise. Being willing to portray a character who sings on stage takes courage. Now, we know that Mrs. Pettus is not exactly the next American Idol, but her addition to the play was delightful, and we should applaud her willingness to put herself out there and to get messy. Or consider Bobby Goodrich. He decided to join the swim team as a junior having never participated in varsity athletics, and although he was never first in state in the 50 Free, he was able to grow as a person by trying something new.

Antoine de Saint-Exupéry stated in The Little Prince that anything to which you dedicate your time, your effort, your love is worth it—because it's yours; you are responsible for what you cultivate. I think that we're often hesitant to take chances because we're afraid of failure, and we equate failure with wasted time. Time will never be wasted, however, if you give your heart to the journey, and even if your plans do fall through, the time you spend therein will serve to enhance your experience as a human being. If you learn from and grow as a result of an experience, it will be time well spent. Therefore, the more willing you are to give your all to a new departure or to whatever you are passionate about, and the more willing you are to be bold about your choices, the richer and the more rewarding your life will be.

Class of 2006, I challenge you to take a chance, not to be afraid to make mistakes, and to be open to getting messy. As long as you remember to laugh at yourself, you can't go wrong. I promise you that in the end, you'll be glad you didn't stay home that day. Remember that once the sound and the fury have faded, we're just people talkin' 'bout people; so, let's give 'em somethin' to talk about. I thank you for listening, congratulations to all of you, good luck, and en avant!
